3699. K1MAN Red Light Rule Case a lie?

I was just reading about the case that K1MAN used to say the Red Light Rule had been ruled invalid. Seems that the case sited may be a fabrication. Apparently the author of http://host.picturewizard.com/2005-7/357648/ has been unable to verify that the case exists though he has tried to verify it.

This, coupled with the total lack of any mention of this case on the FCC's web site and the continued existence of the Red Light Rule pages seems to indicate that this case is totally fiction.

Baxter quotes this case on the following page:

http://members.aol.com/_ht_a/K1MAN14275/myhomepage/business.html

Anybody know for sure one way or another on this?

In the Feb 2006 issue of QST, there is an article about the deployment of a relatively new digital mode developed by the JARL. I was suprised to discover an old RRAP callsign in QST, that of Kim, K5TIT!

It appears that the ARRL has no problem with the callsign, either in print in their magazine QST, nor on-line on the ARRL's web page. Just the Extras on RRAP. Imagine that.

Anyway, you can see for yourself at the following links. You'll have to look at your own QST to see it in print.

Best of Luck.

Lloyd,

I'm happy to know you got it straight from K1MAN's mouth, but I'm looking for some independent verification of what he's claiming. Do you have any or do you not care about the truth? Apparently not.

> Lloyd
> Regional Pizza Director-Manager

Oh, my.. Sooooo Tempting, but I'll resist the temptation to turn the flame thrower on.. :)

A simple trip to QRZ would have informed you that I'm currently not a no code technician, but we've had that discussion before so apparently you don't care about it. I also think that if you where to investigate the available public records you might be able to prove that I've never been a no code technician. (Hint, when I last renewed the license indicates when I originally got my license. When the FCC started giving out no code technicians? Hmmm...) But I forget, you don't care about what's true.. Or do you?

Only allow homebrew equipment, and require it to be FCC type accepted before you can put it on the air. No ICs allowed, no purchased coils or variable capacitors. Hand make everything.

no problem

Here's a little ditty I like to call Comfortably Dumb (it's about me)

Comfortably Dumb
(Waters, Gilmour, ?)

(knocking on Davies' skull)
Hello, Lardass, is there anybody in there?
Just nod if you can hear me.
Is there anyone home?
Come on, now, I'm glad you're feeling down.
Well I can ease your pain
And get you on your flabby feet again.
Relax, I'll need some cyanide first.
In the head you sure are whacked.
Can you snivel when it hurts?

There is no hair yours is receding
A dullard shit who smokes pot as well then.
Your stupidity only comes through in waves.
Your lips move but I can't hear what you're saying.
When you were a child You had a fever
Your hands felt your man tits just like two balloons.
Now You've got that faggotry once again
You can't explain, you just do not understand
The eternal training wheel ham.
Lloyd has become comfortably dumb.

Ok, You're just a little prick.
There'll be no more of your whaaaaaaaaah!
When you get that fat ass kicked.
Can you shut the fuck up?
I do believe it's working, good.
That'll keep you stuttering through your shitty show
Come on, fatty, it's time to go.

There is no decent pay you are receiving
Nobody leaves a tip, pizza delivery career on the horizon.
Your stupidity only comes through in waves.
Your lips move but I can't hear what you're saying.
When you was a child you caught a fleeting glimpse
Of your whore mommy's fur pie.
You turned to look but it was gone
You cannot put Your finger in it now

The child never grown, the dream of being smart is gone.
Lloyd Davies has become comfortably dumb.

I got a big problem. It all started when I bought a DVD player. I was all excited to watch a movie and did not put on my eye glasses. I got the thing plugged in and turned on, and then it said "Insert Disk". Without my glasses, I thought it said "Insert Dick", so I stuck my dick in the machine and the slide out door closed. That was 2 days ago. I live alone and dont have anyone to help. I thought of calling 911, but it's too embarassing to call the cops and try to explain this to them. I know there must be some way to get my dick out of this thing. I hope someone on here can tell me what to do. Please hurry, my dick hurts and has turned blue. This is a emergency.......

AH! HA! We can dress our daughters in poodle skirts and drive to the testing session in our brand-new 1961
Chevrolet Impala Sport Sedan!

Time marches on, boys, and as we age into crotchety old men (Gosh, I hope I don't do the "crotchety" part!), we long for the 'good old days'---whatever THAT was.
Some of us cling desperately to Hallicrafters receivers and Globe King transmitters we bought when our hair was dark and full, and loathe the new 'mini' transceivers (likely because we are befuddled by the menus), and we want Amateur Radio to stay exactly the same as it was just for us! We fuss at the newer automobiles and say "I wish they made 'em the way they used to". I DON'T!
They are actually BETTER than Dad's '65 Galaxie, last longer and run better.
(Try to tell that to the past-dwelling guys who cling frantically to their youth, and they'll lecture you on the virtues of a '56 Chevy AND the 51J2...not that the older stuff isn't "good", just part of the PAST! Which we, BTW, should remember as a basis for advancing into the future.

I don't really like it that CW is going away, but it WILL go away so far as necessity goes same way we don't commute to work in our '56 Fairlane. So we ADAPT to change instead of vainly clinging to the way WE think it should stay forever and a day. When we are dead and gone, the world will be vastly different than we would've remembered it!

3798. FIGHT THE SPEW! xnews / slrn score file update

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.policy
Date: 2006-06-09 17:36:33 UTC
From: Steve <stevel23@no.spam>
Message-ID: <FLA0017833.2458F8791@tarrnews.net>
Source record: 147424

The xnews score file which was posted previously has been updated to block some additional free news servers and anonymous remailers. Google has not been blocked (yet), because the score file is now killing 99% of the spew in the rec.radio.amateur hierarchy.

Xnews is a free news reader which does not have to be installed. Simply extract it from the zip file and start running xnews.exe. You can obtain xnews from

http://www.download.com/3000-2164-10144167.html

and you can copy the score file below into score.ini to have an immediately effective filtering system.

An xnews / slrn score file allows you to specify filtering rules for each news group or for a collection of groups. You do that by enclosing the name of the group(s) in square brackets.

After the bracketed name of the groups, you specify a score. I don't bother with elaborate scoring, and instead give all matches a score of -9999. That causes the matching posts to be killed.

So, for all of the rec.radio.amateur hierarchy, plus the flame_fest news group, you can use the following score file (lines starting with "%" are comments). Text case is ignored by default, so "get help" matches "GeT HElp" when specified below. If you don't want to use a rule, simply insert a "%" character as the first character of a rule, or else delete the rule completely.

There is no moderator search for the radio group. It is for another group and someone has edited the post and replaced the correct name with RRAPM.

Mark here likes to pretend he's someone else, and then he talks to his own sockpuppet. He would be put out of business if this group actually became moderated. He and Wiseman produce 80% of the garbage in rrap/m, and they've been doing it for months.

Pennsylvania launch of balloon carrying Amateur Radio payload set (Jun 9, 2006) -- A balloon carrying an Amateur Radio payload is set for launch Saturday, June 10, at approximately 1300 UTC (9 AM ET) from Samuel Lewis State Park, located just south of US Rte 30 between Lancaster and York, Pennsylvania. The "near space" launch is a project of Pennsylvania Leadership Charter School (PALCS). The balloon is expected to rise to an altitude of about 80,000 feet. An APRS beacon signal will transmit on 144.390 MHz, using the call sign NJ2BB-62. Every third transmission it will also transmit "PALCS PROJECT". A 2 meter MCW beacon on on 146.565 MHz also will continuously send "PALCS PROJECT" for one minute followed by "de NJ2BB" and a 30-second period of silence before repeating the sequence. Line of sight is expected to be between 350 and 450 miles. Send reception reports to AA2WN.--Murray Green, K3BEQ enslaves?

you are just a harrassing jerk that wants to control other you do not "help" someone by starting out threatening and harrasing them

nothing wrong with being strange (and Wisemen is far beyond strange) it hardly being "condemned" that you see being different as being mentaly ill is your problem

It isn't going away any more than tubes are going away or crystal-controlled oscillators are going away. Those of us who wish to use them are free to do so (and this freedom will probably continue for a long time).

Railroad fans admire steam locomotives, car buffs fawn over a Model T and old men love their old wives. But in each case, the object of their affection is, like Morse Code, past its peak of popularity and practicality. Yes, learn Morse, use Morse, even love Morse -- but for crying out loud, stop pretending it's the be-all-end-all of ham radio -- because it isn't.

Yes, yes, yes -- I know Morse Code will get through when other modes fail. I've heard it a hundred times, so it must be true. However, this doleful situation almost never presents itself. If this were a practical view of the world, then we should all buy Army tanks, the better to navigate the rubble of a natural disaster when all other means of transportation are unavailable. (Not a perfect metaphor; work with me, OK?)

Although I have no objection to YOU using Morse Code, I personally resent it because I can't learn it. I've wasted countless hours trying and it just doesn't happen for me. Too bad, so sad. But there are rays of sunshine. The FCC may just lift the requirement off my shoulders before another year passes and in the meantime, maybe I'll rack up more club FD points on UHF/VHF voice than the HF guys on all modes combined. I did it in both 2004 and 2005.

Sorry Mark, but you're wrong. Google confirms what Les is saying.
All anyone has to do is to look at the profiles of your sockpuppets to see that Les is right.

One of your sockpuppets has already produced 172 messages in the first nine days of June. Another has produced 27 messages, another 119 messages, and so on.

You are a major part of the problem, Mark, but you won't face it. I'm convinced that your inability to face that truth is a result of your mental illness.

Mark will respond as he always does. He'll challenge you to "prove it". Much like he did when caught while recently caught forging previous posts.

STUPIDITIY" on some random use group. I find it appaling you could use this tragic occasion to try and further your need to feel like a "somebody" in this world! Michael G. Obermeier, although confined to a wheel chair for the last 26 years of his life was 100 times the man you could ever hope to be, (wait a minute, you are not even a man at all and never will be!)I suggest you just go ahead and complete that nightly thought you have about stuffing you 357 magnum in your mouth and finally pulling the fucking trigger!!!! (Oh wait another minute we have already determined you aren't not man enough to even pull that off you fucking waste of skin and air!!)

You cause more than your share of trouble too you fat turd hypocrite lloyd davies.

Truth be known? Roger Wussman posts 80% (conservative estimate) of the filthy messages seen here. Woger posts under numerous monikers and the dumbass has the gall to think that the rest of us have no idea who he is!
Woger offers nothing of value. He has nothing of value to offer save for unadulterated filth.
Who else posts 90 plus messages per day and says so little? Wussman's posts are vapid, repetitious, and show Woger to be the fool that he claims not to be. Woger is, in the parlance of street people, a "scumbag". Others describe him as a loser. A fifty year old Momma's Boy who can't make it in the real world.
Hide, Woger, hide. Keep those curtains closed and, by God, don't open your door to visitors. You never know when a 98 pound weakling woman may come calling.

&#65533;And Roger wasn't even home when the Heils showed up. That wasn't Roger inside when they showed up, dumbass. Unlike you, he had a woman friend who was there while he had gone to the store.&#65533;

You can kiss my Jewish ass to Hell and back.
What are you gonna do? Come visit me? Dave Heil tried that and I sent him running for the next county.
You guys talk a big game, but you are afraid to come to my door and talk to me one on one. What is the matter? You big shots talk a good game, but you are all afraid of me.

Wisemen hijacks every thread that Robeson doesn't and then some indeed this thread is hijacked thread from a different NG brought here by an act of forgery

if Wisemen is aware that I am working to a plan when I respond to his filth then it is the first sign of intelgence he has shown but frankly I doubt is even aware what he name realy is anymore he never uses it except in the 3rd person

too bad, so sad, indeed

You know, as long as there are effective band plans allowing for CW, data, voice, etc., I really don't care what the FCC does. I learned Morse code as a teenager so I really can't relate to the impossibility of the task. Don't know how THIS old dog would do with a new trick.
All I can say is CW is very enjoyable to me and deserves a prominent place within the bands.

Tune in to the Great Liberty Nitwit Net tonight
starting at 10:00 PM on or about 3.950 LSB.
No doubt the talk will be about Alex Jones gettin his KOOK ASS detained by the RCMP and Canadian Customs over his desires to crash the Bilderberger Meeting in Ottowa so he could use the half-ass footage he was hoping to get for another one of his $19.95 cheeseball videos. What an ASS!

Baaaaaaaaaaa hahahahahahahahahahahahah!!!!!!
PFHHBLTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTTT!!!!!

(Hopefully he'll be featured in a future SouthPark with Terrence & Phillip?) grin

So you think it's GOOD that all these rich, powerful, internationalist, 1-world government types can meet in total secrecy and unaccountability to plot our future without us having anything to say about it? What an ASS!

also, as these forges constituted a violation of 47 USC 223, I have included that information in the e-mail as well.

I know who the perp is now, I know where he lives and pretty soon, he won't have an internet account (at least he'll be relegated back to dialup).

I don't play games anymore people. you wish to harass me, you will pay for it.

The incredible popularity of "American Idol" and the World Cup are both proof that the bulk of humanity are too stupid to make their own decisions. If a "1-world government" means that France will no long exist, it will be a small price to pay.

Yes they are... but that doesn't mean we can go off topic once in a while. I don't personally condone that site by the way but can understand peoples frustrations at what they see. Like this week, the black guy who went on the roof and threw bricks at people below. Up there for ages he was and to satisfy the "human rights" people he had to have a bucket of KFC and a bottle of pop sent up to him.... bloody crazy... If it was a white guy they probably wouldn't have bothered as the PC brigade wouldn't have been interested, y'see to them it only works one way.

If it was down to me I'd have shot him down off the roof after a warning, with a rubber bullet. He wouldn't have been so brave then. That goes for anyone BTW, people are far too soft with criminals these days. Sometimes the police are just too afraid to arrest them.

I have a similar inability to relate, but it has to do with math. Most of it I ever studied came easily to me. However, some poor souls cannot regard simple real life situations in terms of math. For example, E-max for my lovely bride is the checkbook. That's it. [How many square yards in a 9 x 12 foot carpet? Duh - what color is it?]

I learn new tricks every day. Morse Code isn't one of them.

some free advice You will not takeit of course

if you want to libel someone effectively it helps if your lible makes snese

claiming as you do that I am childmolestor and yet I am still walking around after you have been ging about ti for about a years means to anyone you lack eeidence

likewsie effective libel requires that you have an attack target that people care about, most people don't care if I were married " to a tranny indeed only you and Roeson seem to care who I am married to/your effort at claiming I have Aids are more ffective tbutthenyou go over the top and claim access to medical records to prove it, which you don't have becuase they are ilgeal for you to have and so you shoot yourself in the ...eh foot so to speak

another thing to try is being consistant in your "charges" claiming that I am a KKK memer and that a raicstand that I am into sex with black men doesn't make muchsense

I prefer to be on the bottom or 2 be the "catcher".
So to speak.
This way the guy on top has to do all the f-cking work while I just lay there and enjoy the ride like

I just happened to look at NewsMax.com for the first time in a long time, and I found a story on the flavanoids found in hops. One type can prevent prostate cancer. As the story at http://www.newsmax.com/archives/articles/2006/6/12/94011.shtml?s=he goes on to say:

"... the ingredient is present in such small amounts that a person would have to drink more than 17 beers to benefit."

I think I can manage that, but just barely. Maybe Mark Morgan's method of beer ingestion would be more efficient in reaching the prostate. I may have to rethink his postings. Maybe Mark is onto something.

(This space reserved for Mark to post "get help".)

I am looking forward to 2008 when Analog TV transmission is phased out and half (..or more) of the TV sets in the USA suddenly become useless overnight.

I can just see the rioting in the streets in the 'low income'
parts of town when Tyrone, Mustafsa and Kwang Bok TV don't work and all the men come home from work and seein they can't watch Springer or NFL they will all start to beat their wives and 4 feral children senseless....

Should be GREAT FUN !!!!!

I had smoked and I replied "I started about the age of three" She looked at

Even if you have a digital tuner, you are going to find that in urban areas even within sight of the tower, you are going to have a horrible time getting OTA digital reception, even with an outside antenna, like in 1948, but worse. I've been there, done that, and it is a glorious mess until you change your shoes, soak the antenna in salt water, and find out when your wife walks around upstairs the signal will pixilate.

It is not going to be a good scene when they find the converters don't work.

You obviously have not seen the 5th generation 8-VSB chip set receivers.
They perform quite well under multi-path conditions. The condition you are referring to is a thing of the past. It has been corrected.

I have seen new receivers work with as little as a paper clip as an antenna and they perform quite well under strong multi-path

a reminder of a specific law that was revised by the 2005 Justice Dept Reauthorization Act) will get their attention (its called 47 USC 223).

I actually got a human to respond back from them today after a report over the weekend. they said they will be forwarding my information and their data off to the offending ISP.

I have a sneaking suspicion that someone is going to lose their "fat pipe cable/DSL" for forging my identity. I certainly hope so, but I won't hold my breath. Still, a properly worded e-mail can have beneficial effects, no?

Dear sir:

The FCC has been dumbing down ham radio for several years now. This has hurt the integrity of the service and is bad for America. They are planning to dumb it down again really soon now and their plan will make ham radio like CB and it will be bad for America. We already have one CB service, we don't need two. Please pressure the FCC to endorse the following items for the good of the service and County.
God bless America.

Signed
(Your name & callsign)

No more automatic renewals. Individuals must retest and pass all elements required for their license class.

The passing score for written exams needs to be raised to 85%.

Code elements should be 13 wpm for General, and 20 wpm for Extra.

Make the no-code license one year non-renewable.

when I took my test, some math was still required (along with knowing where

I have had chance to read the latest offerings in the test pool.

I'd like to see them bring back the math problems (antenna theory, ohms law beter would be to start a letter like the enclosed beloow (in the deteremined to Kill offthe valuable resuource to this that is Amateur (or Ham) radio Hams do step up when they to the disater that turned out to possiblity num one the list of of 101 things that can go wrong

But they don't rely of CW (Morse encoded OnOffKeyed signals to tit they use whatis a at hand be it Voice Cw Rtty (and other digtial based modes) this the ARS and it stands now being slowly strangled by the Luddities in its midst with the willing assitastance of the FCC in draging their heel in issue the R&O that will implement it most recent NPRM o5-235I believe on restructuringthe ARS) their was nothing new in the coments some folks thik Morse Code Testing should stay but they could only muster the same tired arguement that the Fcc has already stated are not good enough

Urge the FCC to do it job and modernize the ARs before it is too late and more lives are lost that could have been saved if only the FCC had acted in a timely manner

Also interesting to note that the poster going by the handle of "New ham", who asked a rather inane question about a capacitance hat for his antennas (but who has no other posting history at Google), accesses the Internet via a Level3 dialup in Denver.

Possibly it's something in the water up there. Perhaps those three gentlemen ought to form a new ham club in Denver? That's enough members to qualify for a club-station license.

Then you fail to recruit new blood into the hobbie. Certainly they should have restrictions, but you need to have a no-code ticket available, otherwise why leave 11 meters. I do not want to learn the code, I have no interest in learning the code, I never plan to use code, but someday I may change my mind, and when that day comes I can test and move up in class. But if you stop people at the front gate, don't expect them to return.

We recruited more new blood into the "hobbie" when the Novice required code (if you can't learn 5wpm, there's no way you could learn enough theory to pass the old exams - and there's more theory to know these days) AND one year non-renewable than we do now. There are reasons there's less new blood, but code isn't one of them.

Good question. Ask those who did back in the early 60s - when code was required. Maybe just listening to 11 meters, then listening to 20 meters, is reason enough.

Since tens of thousands of hams "returned" when code was required, your basic premise is wrong. You wouldn't return if code were required, but you aren't everyman. (Try the old General as the "entry level" exam, 13 wpm and pretty stiff theory, with the only upgrade being the Class A ticket. And yet, many many hams went that route.)

Kennedy would be too conservative for even the neocons,

What the heck are you talking about??!! I currently have a Philips HDTV and am using an outdoor antenna with rotor. I not only get perfect reception of the local channels, but depending on the weather, get several channels from Sacramento, about 180 miles north of me. Sacramento HDTV stations come in often during morning and evening, usually the SAME times the analog signals from Sacramento also come in. The difference is the analog signal will be weak and snowy and the digital signal is perfect. I also have gotten perfect reception from stations in Bakersfield (100 miles south of me), Salinas (100+ miles northwest of me), and even from San Francisco, nearly 200 miles from me. NEVER a problem with ALL the local channels.

The problem now is that many of the stations broadcasting in HDTV are using LOW power and will switch to their regular power at a later date. An engineer from a station in San Louis Obispo (100+ miles from me) told me that I should get channel 6 in HDTV once they increase to full power later this year, and that their HDTV signal will actually work farther than their analog signal.

I have a 57" Phillips HDTV also. Never tried it with an outdoor antenna.
Direct tv offers my local channels (mostly in HDTV) on my dish and I get fantastic reception. I have an antenna on the roof, but it's not designed for HDTV, so I cannot give a fair evaluation of how well it does or doesn't work.

Reagan may have wanted a WW3, but he didn't use drugs. The documentary I saw about JFK said he had a Dr. shooting him up with meth up to 5 times a day.
I'm not the conspiracy theory type of person, but I can see why a government organization would want him dead.

bunkum

If your signal is strong enough, the aerial on your roof should get it V or UHF. Some of those goofy antennas were for DX and they cost enough to design I guess so maybe they should to recoup the ching. I don't know about line amps and signals though. If you are in 5-10 miles of the tower, I would dare to try a 6 ft speaker wire or a butterfly or loop from the dollar store just for play. More than 30 miles out--stick to the cable. It can get variable enough not to be worth it. My station can't even send an STL from a digital source to the analog UHF signal they use to tease for the second SD channel. Block party?

Try the cheap antenna (once you've found where digital channel 7.2 is, in my instance. On UHF 2? in my case. You may be surprised.

The fact that he "ruined" government (government as it was, at any rate), might have something to do with that.

Actually, if you knew anything about "radio" in general, you would realize that we DO have more than one CB service; matter of fact, there are 5 CB Services.

One (GMRS) requires a license, one that in non-voice (R/C,) and 3 that are open to whomever wants to use them, license-free (CB, FRS, and MURS.)

Get at least a SMALL clue...

Yeah, right, you fucking queer. You'd want to be alone with him to have sex with him. He'd take your weapon and stick it up your faggot ass, faggot. Then he'd knock your rotting teeth out.

No, you can't even spell it when it's right in front of you. You did "confirm" that you are married in some way to a shemale, however.

Hey Erica are you going to bring about litigation against them too?

Did you find that boyfriend you were looking for in the alt.sex groups? I hear Mark is a real slut so if you play your cards right he might show you his enema technique.

well, I have this to say...

I have been blind some 15 years. in all that time, I have not had a paying job. I have sought after one, done the entire job process from beginning to end. there are many reasons for this (some of which are my fault and others due to the nature of the state I live in).

Here's a novel Idea for ya!!

What a WONDERFUL place the World would be if BOTH the stinking Arabs and the Jews were all exterminated!

Just pause and think of it for a moment......

No more 2000+ year old squabbles between these thoroughly inbred and retarded races of people.

I say we give Iran and Israel 10 atom bombs each and let them blow each other and the Middle East off the g-d'mmd f-n map ONCE AND FOR ALL.

several points:
1. make a note of the times. (the url has a date of Sep 21 1997)
secondly, both idfents are known by me and both are known to be "from" me.
3. ones net worth per hour is not an indication of employment. just an indication of worth based on skills current at the time.
4. just because I have not had one paying job (of record) does not mean anything given the context of the discussion (which you seemed to have missed).
5. the figure cited above was based on facts known about the particular field of which I have relevant skills (again, not an indication of employment)

you are so damned fast to declare my a liar, yet my own words (then as well as now) do not prove your case.

a little hard for me to have made that post considering that none of the

also, that was proven then to be a forge using my name and the person perpatrating it got nailed with a TOS violation from their ISP.

so? care to try again?

If they did what you want, ham radio would be dead in just a few years.

The primary problem causers in the past and present aren't new hams, they are the old timers who passed all the elements a long time ago.
Maybe it's the cause of their behavior?

The code needed to go 40 years ago, it's about time it was removed as a requirement.

Fascism and nazism are mutually inclusive.
It doesn't take a particular party or historical manifestation to advocate tyranny and genocide. Obviously your ignorance is indeed the reason i think the curret wae has gotten quite so out of hand is that at least one of the targets (myself) has responded but not in the manner they wanted or expected so they are engaged on a road of trying to escalate till they get the response they want/need sooner or later something will break perhaps what is left of their minds prehaps something else

I know I have beaten Robeson and I can go teo to teo with Wismen as long as I feel like part of the problem for them is a I guess once they got a response to posting addresses and phone number Wiosmen has been posting my father in law number for several week without him geting a single harrasing call meaning most folks truly don't care who I sleep with enough to bother him

Of course I have always sais the shrillier the arguement the weaker the well, it works with some. after a while though, it ceases to be effective (the tolerance level goes up so to speak).

I'd say your in-law has been rather lucky. I have experienced first hand what happens when a phone number gets broadcast across 11 meters (200 hangup calls in less than an hour). the person that caused that situation lost both his phone service and his freedom (for about 9 months)

too bad all the trolls drove out all the greybeards. it really would have been nice to have some actual technical discussions with real teeth and real meat in the subjects. anymore, its just the trolls and the never ending battle to keep them under the bridge.

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.policy

Source record: 147799
Cross-posted to: rec.radio.amateur.misc,rec.radio.amateur.policy

The xnews score file which was posted previously has been updated to block some additional free news servers and anonymous remailers.
Google has not been blocked (yet), because the score file is now killing 99% of the spew in the rec.radio.amateur hierarchy.

Xnews is a free news reader which does not have to be installed.
Simply extract it from the zip file and start running xnews.exe.
You can obtain xnews from

http://www.download.com/3000-2164-10144167.html

and you can copy the score file below into score.ini to have an immediately effective filtering system.

An xnews / slrn score file allows you to specify filtering rules for each news group or for a collection of groups. You do that by enclosing the name of the group(s) in square brackets.

After the bracketed name of the groups, you specify a score. I don't bother with elaborate scoring, and instead give all matches a score of -9999. That causes the matching posts to be killed.

So, for all of the rec.radio.amateur hierarchy, plus the flame_fest news group, you can use the following score file (lines starting with "%" are comments). Text case is ignored by default, so "get help" matches "GeT HElp" when specified below. If you don't want to use a rule, simply insert a "%" character as the first character of a rule, or else delete the rule completely.

why?

why does anybody deserve to be harrased

and why do you enage in such pety behavoir

you have clear issues in your own life that you have to rty and attack anyone different than yourself

Indeed part of the th point of Ham radio is met people different from yourself

if this is your adittude you may as well turn in your license

Mark can't be blammed for his horse shit.We as a society are to blame. There was a time when a person with Mark's problem would have just been sent to a mental hospital and forgotten about. We have been told it is his lifestyle,not really an illness. Main stream America allowed this to happen.

Mark is just one small example of what happens when sickness runs unchecked. I hope one day this will change. When enough people (silent majority?) stand up and say enough is enough people like Morgan will crawl back into the shadows or face proper judgement.

Your compliments will get you nowhere, Woger. And I'm not Dave Heil,

You are a liar, too. You also have no college degrees and a shemale wife and a felony conviction!

Hey Spew Boy,
You're also a major source of the BS here. Anyone who gets usenet access from cris caputo should also be filtered. So stick your sorry trollin ass in the next file update and don't forget to include your sock puppets.

Thanks, 73, Have a nice day. Happy to Help.

Modernizing ham radio:

No more CW, easier to pass written exams. We Should change the names: Tech, General & Extra too. No sense hanging with the dinosaurs when there's no need to be proficient at anything anymore:

Appliance Operator 1st Class, Appliance Operator 2nd Class

Appliance Operator 3rd Class, No Class

Now Ten twenty-seven to channel one nine to get a preview of the new classes. I'm ten seven. Any one got a ten thirty-six hello.

Sorry for the CB lingo, I'm just getting practiced up so I can understand people when the CW test goes away.

You really want modernization?

Well, Roger, when it comes to being all you can be, you reached that Normal sex? The only sex you discuss involves the wives, parents and children of your target. You picture them having sex with animals, involved in same gender sex, involved in pedophilia and involved in prostitution. So much for your definition of "normal". You belong in a rubber room, you piece of rotten, mentally deranged filth.

Was it a big "oops" in the DNA chain or a result of your being rejected by your birth mother which led you toward what you've become, Roger?

Do you ever find yourself envious of those who are normal and who have led productive lives. Did you ever wonder there was a chance that you could have developed normally? There's likely still a chance that with therapy and drug treatment, you could lead a somewhat normal existence.

Sure I want modernization. I dont have to put up with any of it. I havent been on the air for at least ten years. I renewed the license, then put it away.
The ham bands are gonna go away, and soon. They are gonna go the same way that respect for your fellow amateur went, cooperation went, etc. The FCC has a vested interest in shutting the ham bands down, since their funding got cut years ago. BPL looked like a winning plan to shut it all down so they could sell it off, but that flopped, since it also interfered with other emergency services, like police and fire. so, the easiest way to shut it down for good is to just hand it over to the cb crowd. They will make a complete mess out of it, and they wont waste any time doing it, either.

Then the FCC can improve their funding, considerably. Just think, the fines from the violations alone will come to millions. Did you really think that the FCC was looking for "new innovations and inventions" coming out of ham radio ? This is the digital age, guy.
In the meantime, enjoy these tirades from folks about the "fat-amateur". Me, I pump iron every day, and could probably knock most of them on their keester without even breaking a sweat, and im twice their age. The irony of them opening their mouths has not escaped me, these new, modern "sensitive" guys that are doing 99% of the ranting on this subject. It begs the question: Just which pair of their mother's panties are they wearing today ?
Ham Radio started to suck about ten years ago, and it is going to continue the downhill slide. Get tused to it.

And before you start in on me, lemme tell ya fella, i was a cw operator, and i also built most of my own stuff. It just ain't worth it any more. Period.

I never claimed victim status, I can hold my own on Usenet. You on the other hand are unable to decipher a header or properly use Google. Markie-tard has been on my killfile list (16 listings) for some time. If you knew how to Google you would see a long standing battle between us concerning his gay postings. And yet here you are making homo comments. If you want to come out of the closet then do so.....on another news group. BTW, I and the rest of the non-trolls that were in this discussion would like to thank you for making an ass of yourself.

Oh, they know Wiseman alright. They've been to his house because of an email forwarding stunt Roger pulled on Nimbusters last year. As a matter of fact, Roger even bitched about it on the Nim boards.

I doubt that the CBer would take over on all bands. One of the attractions of CB is the cost of equipment. The FCC will probably sell off the unused bandwidths to private organizations such as cell companies and repeaters for the service industry to name a few. They can then be done with all the headaches with ham/cb enforcement and concentrate on other, more lucrative areas, such as Janet Jackson's half time nipple exposure.

They know you, lardass, because of your kiddie porn ads! And \they know you because of the forwarding stunt you pulled, as well as the caller id spoofing and fake orders you sent. You bitched about it on your shitty show and on Nim Busters, fatass!

do i? thanks for your observation. it means so much coming from a wacked out pervert. btw, if it pissed you off that i cut the cross posts to the fag groups you could have put them back. i didn't know they meant so much to
you. instead you whine like a sissy........oh wait......you are a sissy!

PS, I love ham radio all over again (missing for 30 years)
I'm building an Elecraft K-2, having a great time. Monitoring the bands on a Grundig...sounds good to me. Not the same as 30 years ago, but then again, Frank Zappa is dead, too.

BWHAHAHAHA Markie is proud of it!

> get help

You direct the same words at almost everyone who takes the time to mock your many shortcomings; such as your inability to construct logical arguments, your limited vocabulary, your utter failure at projecting even a tiny bit of personality in your writing, the lack of character that prevents you from admitting your mistakes, your total lack of flaming ability, your choice of newsgroups, your hair style, your lisp, your semi-famous effort to conduct a comparative study of the taste of semen, and many others I must elide from this article due to space constraints.

Because of this, the words have lost any effect it might otherwise possess. Because you limply toss it in the ring every time someone gets the better of you - i.e. every time you try your fairy hand against someone who isn't a fellow faggot - you've successfully emasculated the words through overuse.

Also, your use of them are very, very boring.

Just yesterday, you believed that I was writing as Stagger Lee. Before that, Stagger Lee was Lloyd or Chason or John-somebody.

If we are to understand your Roger Wiseman logic, Stagger Lee's post exposing your outright plagiarism was plagiarism? Does that mean that another used the same words and provided the same url to expose your plagiarism, Rog? "Realy"?

Be all that you can be, Roger.

Here's how Saggytits works, he takes a cut and paste adds a few words to it, and tries to pass it off as his own.

Fuckup Stagger Lee <SLee@houston-hunks.com> proves he's as ignorant of music as he is in everything else when he utters the following stupidity in <k8mn.is.a.god@houston-hunks.com>:

"Eric Clapton even wrote a song about Leila!"

"Stagger Backpedal BOY Lee" <SLee@houston-hunks.com> blathered more idiocy when he tried to backpedal out of his fuckup in message <ab8mq.cant.touch.k8mn@houston-hunks.com>:
"On one of the most complete web sites of Eric Clapton music (http://www.netmusicitalia.it/spot/archivio/v.html), we read that one of the selections is:
2/01 Vidal bagnoschiuma Eric Clapton "Laila" which is, of course, a different composition than the more familiar "Layla" that SWR Boy was trying to discuss. Composed during a Clapton visit to Helsinki, it was inspired by a gracious host named "Laila" -- the wife of then Assistant Ambassador David Heil."

Stupid Lee (Stagger Lee@ houston-hunks.com) provides yet another example of his idiocy in <way.way.beyond.woger@houston-hunks.com>:
"That's because transmission line loss and SWR are not directly related."

Phoenix sweats most but Miami suffers more Wed Jun 14, 4:27 PM ET

NEW YORK (Reuters) - Phoenix on Wednesday was named the sweatiest city in the United States, but Miami topped the list as the most uncomfortable American city due to its mix of humidity and heat.

The fifth annual sweat survey sponsored by Procter & Gamble Co. handed the dubious distinction to the Arizona capital for the third time. El Paso, Texas, earned the title in 2004 and San Antonio, Texas, in 2002.

The study of 100 cities estimates the amount of sweat a person of average weight and height would produce walking around for an hour in the average high temperatures of a particular city during June, July and August.

The latest survey found that the average Phoenix resident produced 26 ounces (0.77 litre) of sweat per hour during a typical summer day last year when the desert city's high temperature averaged 93.3 F (34 C).

It means that in under three hours, Phoenix residents collectively produced enough sweat to fill an Olympic-sized swimming pool, said Jay Gooch, sweat expert at Old Spice, a Procter & Gamble Co. antiperspirant brand.

But Gooch said Phoenix's humidity was only 22 percent, making it much more comfortable than Miami, with average temperatures last year of 83.9 F (29 C) and humidity of 76 percent, according to government figures.

"In Phoenix you sweat much more than in Miami, but it evaporates quickly as it is such dry air so you don't notice as much. In Miami the sweat stays on your skin," said Gooch.

BWHAHAHAHAHAHAHA And smelly Erica Oyen really needs those 5 showers a day!

And I suppose that your abuse of everyone in two news groups is okay?
You have abused us all by filling the newsgroups with "get help" posts
(about 500 of them so far this month) and driving legitimate posters away. You have been abusing us all since June of last year.

For your own selfish and twisted reasons, you have ruined two news groups in an insane vendetta regarding k4yz, and he hardly ever posts here any longer! Your posts have legally become spam because their BI is well above 20. You have no room to talk about anybody, and are widely regarded as being another deranged user like Wiseman.

http://www.powerofprophecy.com/bush_pitiful_tool_puppeteers.htm

George W. Bush has lived a very charmed life, indeed. Just think. Raised with a silver spoon in his mouth, a mental buffoon laughed at by classmates at the expensive and exclusive fancy pants private schools he attended, Georgy Boy scored so low on his SAT college exam he wasn't even admissible to Podunk University in the back hills of West Virginia. But thanks to Poppy Bush, Georgy Boy got into a privileged Ivy League school, where he was tapped for the elite secret society, Skull & Bones.

Was his selection as a Bonesman based on merit and ability or perhaps his Yale academic performance? Not on your life! Georgy got into the world's most exclusive secret society because he was heir to the legacy of his daddy: George Herbert Walker Bush. His daddy was also a Bonesman at Yale; and before George Senior, there was Prescott Sheldon Bush, George W's grandfather. He, too, had been a Bonesman at Yale. It's an intergenerational dynasty thing you know.

Alcohol, Cocaine, and Wild Parties

By the time he was in his late 40s, Georgy Boy had accomplished-uhhh...ahhh-nothing with his life. His only claim to fame was that time when, stoned on alcohol and cocaine at a wild party attended by decadent debutantes, he danced naked on a table and scandalized the Bush clan. Also, there were the DUIs, the rape coverup, and other little details that I won't bother to recap here, now. Too tedious. Oh, there was also the neat photo of Georgy Boy all decked out in his spiffy Air National Guard uniform. Though his status in the Guard got him deferred from the draft and allowed him to bypass Vietnam War duty, the would-be warrior never showed up for most of his required military training. Never mind. He was a Bush. The political appointee brass shrugged and pretended all was well.

Shiftless, a loser, a party animal who never worked a day in his life, Georgy Boy's charmed life struck the mother lode in 1996. The Texas Republican Party, taking its cue from wealthy Jewish country club types in Dallas and Houston, chose Georgy Boy to be its candidate for Governor of the State of Texas.
Bush was not surprised. He knew he was "qualified."
He was a businessman, said his credentials.
Owned one percent (that's 1%) of the Texas Rangers
pro baseball team, gifted to him by a family friend.
It's a tough, tough job to manage one percent of a sports team, but somebody had to do it.

Georgy Boy won the election. Beat the lesbian cocaine queen, colorful Democrat named Ann Richards, at the polls. And, well, the rest is history.
For two terms Georgy Boy occupied the Governor's Office in Austin, smiled and partied a lot, and went to a lot of Rangers baseball games. This prepared him for the Presidency of the United States, a post Georgy Boy won with the help of a few Republicans sitting on the U.S. Supreme Court, including liberal pro-abortion justices like Sandra Day O'Connor and David Souter.
A triumphant Bush reminds me of famous actor
James Cagney who, portraying the role of a two-bit hood, shouted out that famous movie line, "Ma, I'm on top of the world!"

But Georgy Boy, in 2001, was not alone at the top.
The fascist Illuminati chieftains who put him in the Oval Office also sent to Washington, D.C. a huge assortment of Zionist political handlers and watchers, conspiratorial men called neocons to guide their newly elected puppet and insure their cherished agenda came to pass.
For years their scheme had been honed to perfection
at elite gathering places like the Bohemian Grove, the Bilderberger conclaves, the lodge meetings of the Grand Lodge in Jerusalem, the House of the Temple in Washington, D.C., the Grand Orient Lodge in Paris, and at the Rothschild mansion in Scotland. It called for a New Regime to be installed in Washington.

Agents of Influence

The stooge-in-residence, the presider over carnival events, was slated to be the Illuminati's front man and mouthpiece, George W. Bush. The bumbling, but likeable Bonesman seemed perfect for that part. But to make sure he got it right, around him were assigned cunning, dedicated, and traitorous Agents of Influence at the Pentagon, in the Justice Department, in the White House, at the CIA, FBI, and at the National Security Agency. These were the choke points, the brain centers, the action stations where the real decisions would be made. Here were placed the real decision makers. Most had to be Jews, of course, men whose first loyalty was to the Illuminati and to Zionism, its chosen vehicle for 21st century world domination.

The neocon Zionist Agents of Influence were given a script to go by, The Project For A New American Century (PNAC), formulated by radical Trotskyite Communists-men like William Kristol, Paul Wolfowitz, Dick Cheney, Donald Rumsfeld, Libby Lewis, Douglas Feith, Richard Pearle, Michael Ledeen. The PNAC essentially called for the United States to be Israel's proxy. As the world's sole Super Power, the U.S.A. was to flex its diplomatic and military muscles. A new Cold War was to be launched, this time against a newfound, virtually imaginary foe, hordes of Hollywood-caricatured Arab Moslem "Terrorists."

Struck with fear, goaded into frightful idiocy by state-sponsored terrorism, perpetrated clandestinely by the Israeli Mossad, the CIA, the British MI, etc., the American public could be counted on to pay the freight for the establishment of a global police state.

Following a horrendous and bloody ritual sacrifice (9/11), the Illuminati were convinced that an aroused populace would give their inspirational puppet, President Georgy Boy, all the Orwellian tools and bureaucratic powers needed to set up this fledgling global police state. It was to be "rally round the President" time.

A Hotbed of Zionist Intrigue

To accommodate the New Regime's carefully plotted-out agenda, the White House, the Pentagon, and other agencies became a hotbed of Zionist intrigue. The doors of government were always open to Israeli politicians and pro-Israel fanatic groups like the Christian Right, AIPAC, the ADL, and JINSA, but they were closed to the plight of survivor families, Katrina refugees, military wounded, etc.

Afghanistan and Iraq, two countries that had never attacked America and had no means of ever doing so, were soon invaded. These were the opening shots in the New Regime's never ending, new War on Terror. Oil and Israeli supremacy over the entire Middle East region were at stake. This was the prize. But the Illuminati saw these two, semi-conquered nations of Iraq and Afghanistan as only the beginning. Syria, Iran, Lebanon, Venezuela, Bolivia, and many more must follow in their train.

Meanwhile, U.S./Israeli concentration camps are fast being built and put into operation around the globe: A worldwide Gulag system of torture and misery that, eventually, will make Stalin's Soviet Gulag and Hitler's Nazi camps look puny in comparison is now being erected.

Victims' screams of agony, after all, cannot be heard when the torture is taking place thousands of miles away from sight of civilization, behind concrete and steel walls. Nor can the nosy Red Cross and Amnesty International organizations visit remote, hidden U.S./Israeli Gulag camps, the existence of which they know little or nothing.

A Dancing Puppet On A String

Georgy Boy is, naturally, only a pawn in the Illuminati's end-time game, a dancing puppet on a string. His sinking standing in opinion polls stamps George W. as an incompetent, uninspiring leader who, increasingly, is of little value to the Illuminati schemers. The conspirators need a vigorous President, a statesman, a hero. But poor Georgy Boy is now viewed by the masses as some type of white Stephan Fetchit, a bumbling, shoulder-shrugging, clueless rich boy in way over his head.

Dick Cheney is seen in many circles as a negative light as well, as a trigger-happy, drunken sidekick of Georgy Boy's. This will simply not do. You better believe the illuminati are unhappy with George W. and Dick, and if they could do so without alerting the public to their dark schemes, they'd dump both, and fast. Impeachment? Maybe. Assassination? Possible. But more likely, they'll just tighten up and have their Agents of Influence run things as best they can, while Georgy Boy is left to twist and spindle in the wind. He will remain a pitiful, hapless, lame duck President whom the Agents of Influence will simply disregard and keep on a tight leash.

As TV comedian Stephen Colbert, of Comedy Central's The Colbert Report, somewhat knowingly put it, for now they are busy rearranging the deck chairs on the Hindenberg. Then will come the 2008 election and a brand new opportunity. This time maybe the Illuminati won't put forth two donkey-head candidates. No more Skull and Bones losers like Yale's George W. Bush and dunderhead swift-boater John Kerry. No, indeed.

For 2008, we might jut see the One come forward that they've been grooming for world leadership for a long, long time. This man will have both a name and a number. The wise will be able to count that number. It will mathematically be calculated as six hundred, three score, and six.

CUKOO! - CUKOO! - CUKOO! - CUKOO! - CUKOO! - CUKOO! - CUKOO! - CUKOO! -

I took the online practice test and passed without studying. I do not possess any license, as I have no desire to become a ham. And yes I know what OFF/ON means. I probably know more about theory than most of the trolls on this group. I certainly post on topic more often than most of you. But I can post on topic once a month and accomplish that.

You have abused us all by filling the newsgroups with "get help" posts
(about 500 of them so far this month) and driving legitimate posters away. You have been abusing us all since June of last year.

For your own selfish and twisted reasons, you have ruined two news
groups in an insane vendetta regarding k4yz, and he hardly ever posts
here any longer! Your posts have legally become spam because their BI is well above 20. You have no room to talk about anybody, and are widely regarded as being another deranged user like Wiseman.

Get bent, asshole!
//////////
Mark is far too stupid to see that what he is doing is spam. In fact, he's far too stupid to even be ashamed of his abuse. He just doesn't get it.
Can't get it.
I'd like to see Woger get this ignoramus booted from his ISP as he threatened. One less Mark = one less rectal cavity on Usenet.
500 posts just THIS MONTH?? That would be at least 33 per day, not counting the other nims Markie uses. I'd bet he posts no less 33 and probably as many as 50 per diem. (Diem means "day", Markie.)
What does he do for employment? (that means a "job", Markie) He's surely not intelligent enough to do much, besides spam Usenet and stalk Steve.

He claimed to work for the government sitting at home as an advisor, then said it was tech support. I've never seen him post anything of a technical nature. I believe he does get a check from the government, either welfare or social security.

these words and the insistance of a poster in another thread that some how I my posting has rsien to some legal (did he realy mean ilgeal) level of being spam I point out Wismen has aleegedly tried to have me ToS , this is likely a lie OTOH Daveheil claims he has tried and alegedly doid Han (something or other the arrl director) and Robeson and land shark and prehaps others unknown to me as well have made efforts to me ToSed (without BTW acting aginst Wismen which shows you how bad off they are although I believe Dave has tried to ToS Wismen with little sucess) and yet I am still here posting quite openly from Hughes net under my call letter without the slightest disruption other claim that they have been "bomarded" by more than 5000 get help post ing the last month (I have not been counting so I will prisionaly accept the number) as a contrast I receive (and without any relationship to the NG more than 1000 spam emails a day trying to sell me Viagara or beast enalregements or golf clubs or god knows what is next,I supect many of us receive simliar levels of true spam

Yes Robeson has quit the feild and as such I really mention him Wismen remains and has posted (based on the fact I respond about 80 perecent of his posts) roughly 600 months in the same time span, and they contain some of the vilest materail it is has been my sorry duty to see, and that behavoir is ACCEPTABLE to those complaining

Id rather not need to post get help so much Id rather wismen got help, but even Dave Hiel no freind of mine to be sure reconizesthat Wismen has become sexualy obessed with me, if having the misforutne to become the target of someone sixk sexaul obession is reason for most poster to jion in trying to force the vitum offline USENET is dead a free mdium

Be sure to tune in tonight 10pm EST for "The Right Perspective," over the Internet at www.therightperspective.com and shortwave WWCR 3.215 Mhz.

Tonight, hosts Frank and John will discuss how the Left is exactly like the Far Right when it comes to certain topics. Also on the agenda tonight is Bush's trip to Iraq, Poland and the Times' attack on it as bigotry, the double standard when it comes to leftwing bigotry, a new book on the crimes of communism and the blindness of the "intellectualls" !

"Hello, Afrika!" will feature Mnr. Nico Coettezze, who will continue discussing the prophecies of the Boere Seer "Oom Klassie" Seiner Von Renseburg and what this portends to the future of DieBoereVolk.

And of course, you are a part of the show, too! Call into the show with your comments and views at 718-761-9996.

Hear what the other conservative talk radio hosts will be saying next week tonight at 10pm EST by clicking here for live stream:

Wrong, stupid. A check of qrz.com shows AB8MQ to hold an Extra Class license, and has since 2002.

http://www.qrz.com/detail/AB8MQ

Markie was just caught in a lie! Poor stupid Markie!

No you haven't. You are lying.
http://www.qrz.com/detail/KB9RQZ

You only hold a no code Technician.

>but he has been unable to

Funny how he has been able to pass it and you can't he even passed his 13 wpm morse code test while you can't.
But you are a retard. And now a proven liar.

Nope, you haven't passed anything beyond the training wheel license.
And you are waiting for them to dumb it down so you can pass the requirements, instead of trying to pass them now.

Roger wismen you are slime that deserves to to be murdered byt way having one or more people trap you in your home ....ahem I mean hovel and torch the place.

you deservse because it is more or less the same fate you are trying to inflict on other by publishing their names and adress and calling them child molestors

you deservse the fate you seek to bring on others Wismen pity you are not likely to get get any of it

you will likely get neither your wish for my death so often expressed or the fate you so richly deservse

that is closer to being a "death threat" then what you reported but it isn't both are merely assesment of just how sick you are Congratulations, Morkie Moron...

You've beat your old record of the most mispelled, inappropriate, and otherwise butchered "words" in a row without making a lick of sense.

1000 spam messages a day?

I say you're a liar.

Ooooooooooops...You ARE a liar...sorry!

And I'd think you'd be TICKLED with getting both Viagra and breast enlargement solicitations...That way you can be both the little boy AND the little girl you always HOPED to be!

Congratulations, Your Most Moroness...

444 "words" without a period. You did use some commas and spaced some words like paragraphs, but as usual your "paragraphs" only left as much confusion as your "words" due to your total abuse of proper English grammar and construction.

No, it's not.

ONE of your "emenies" may think you're better than Wiseman, but that leaves the 999,999 rest of us in agreement.

What's a "Maj"...??!!

How about an answer that lives up to YOUR rhetoric about what a great guy you are?

So far all you've done is prove me right...Again.

DESPITE your claims of expertise in computers and three college degrees...But don't sweat it, Mork...We just heaped your "college degrees" on the pile with the rest of your lies.

No, you didn't.

Exercise at least ONE of those alleged college degree, Mork, scroll back and answer the question.

> > What's a "feild"...?!?!

I never said I was a "soldier".

I >>>AM<<< a retired Marine.

And we didn't have a "feild" in the Marines.

Now, WHAT is a "feild", Mork?

Sure we will...

Morkie's posted numerous questions about "radio" in this forum over the years.

And when he doesn't like the answer, no matter how specifically put, he calls the respondants liars, cheats, etc.

I didn't say that his comment was a lie.

I said your suggestions that your "emenies" (plural...as in "all") find you better than Wiseman is a lie.

Had you said ONE of your "emenies" found you better, you would have been correct.

But instead you went for the grandstand and screwed it up.

I know so if you were going to it you'd have done it by now what you try to do is inspire ometone to thik I am realy a child molestor and do it for you but you stupidity and hate has driven everyone off but the lunatic Wismen and few other others

you will do nothing to stop me from calling your daughter the defective should ahve been aborted thing she was not even decide to try a new

I doubt that you sent anything they'll take seriously, Woger. The last time you reported me to an NSP, you used an anonymous remailer, and your "complaint" was thrown away by Chris Caputo after he forwarded it to me for my amusement. You screwed up and left your own unique stamp on the anonymous email, and it was obvious that you had sent it.

That was when I outed your Stratuswave account, remember?

The first thing you have to do when you send email to an ISP is to use your real name and email address. Anything else, and the complaint usually gets tossed. Even if you do use your real name, many ISPs have a low level employee manning the abuse account, and it's really hard to get them to take any action on a complaint.

To bypass all of that, most people who are seriously registering a complaint use the U.S. Mail to send a letter to the ISP. The letter gets attention that an email will never get, because most businesses put incoming letters into a tracking system in order to make sure that they are handled properly. The letter also bypasses all of the Internet email blocks and gets into the hands of a real person.

So if you're going to complain with effect, send a well constructed buisness letter to Hughes, and they're likely to respond more favorably (from your viewpoint). I know that tactic worked quite well with Pam Hoffer, for example, because you got dumped by Ovis within days after she was contacted by mail.

Yes, mail is the way to go.

(Hope this helped.)

We have three classes now, Should we increase or decrease?

I'm thinking we can reduce the number to two license classes:

One class for VHF/UHF so those people can screw up the repeaters, and one with a little harder test that adds HF privileges, for those that want to screw things up world wide.

If I may be so bold as to brag? Stagger Lee described the process quite well, Woger.
I followed Stagger Lee's suggestions insofar as snail mail is concerned and it was I, Woger, who printed out your vile posts about Pam. It was I who mailed them to Pam on a Wednesday. It was Pam who shut off your Ovis account on Friday.
And, Woger, if you don't learn how to conduct yourself accordingly you can expect to be visited by Sgt. Vogler or Chief Stenger once again.

You just don't get it, do you?

The rest of us do though. We call this "spank on Woger".

MUHAHAHAHAHAHHAHAHAHAHAHAHA

What a fucking retard, you'd think after all this time Woger would have

Yes, but then your credibility is not too good is it? Ever find that Marshall County WV ARES website? Oh, that's right you tried to pas off one in Marshall County Alabama as the one for West Virginia.

Then what is at http://www.geocities.com/skywarncanwarn/ doodle brain?
It sure looks like the Marshall County ARES, and it even has a place to send email.

these words and the insistance of a poster in another thread that some how I my posting has rsien to some legal (did he realy mean ilgeal) level of being spam I point out Wismen has aleegedly tried to have me ToS , this is likely a lie OTOH Daveheil claims he has tried and alegedly doid Han (something or other the arrl director) and Robeson and land shark and prehaps others unknown to me as well have made efforts to me ToSed (without BTW acting aginst Wismen which shows you how bad off they are although I believe Dave has tried to ToS Wismen with little sucess) and yet I am still here posting quite openly from Hughes net under my call letter without the slightest disruption other claim that they have been "bomarded" by more than 5000 get help post ing the last month (I have not been counting so I will prisionaly accept the number) as a contrast I receive (and without any relationship to the NG more than 1000 spam emails a day trying to sell me Viagara or beast enalregements or golf clubs or god knows what is next,I supect many of us receive simliar levels of true spam

Yes Robeson has quit the feild and as such I really mention him Wismen remains and has posted (based on the fact I respond about 80 perecent of his posts) roughly 600 months in the same time span, and they contain some of the vilest materail it is has been my sorry duty to see, and that behavoir is ACCEPTABLE to those complaining

Id rather not need to post get help so much Id rather wismen got help, but even Dave Hiel no freind of mine to be sure reconizesthat Wismen has become sexualy obessed with me, if having the misforutne to become the target of someone sixk sexaul obession is reason for most poster to well Sadly wismen is obessed with shemales i was responding to"You couldn't spank anything except your black tranny girlfriend's penis."

and his constant insistance that my wife is not female byt male

he is sick prevert that she she male everywhere he look he also insist from time tot time that I am a shemale

take you complaint with the man obsessed with themRoger Wismen

I'm Still Spamming

(Elton John/Bernnie Taupin/Mark C. Morgan, kb9rqz)
[From the album "Markie's I.Q. is Too Low For Zero"]

You could never know what it's like
When you marry a jewish/polish transexual bulldyke
And if there's a cold lonely light that shines from you You'll wind up like the wreck I hide behind those sockpuppets I use in newsgroups

And did you think this fool could never win
Well look at me, I'm spamming again and again
I got a taste of love in a simple way
And if you need to know why I'm still spamming Wismen just post away

Don't you know I'm still spamming better than I ever did Deluding myself that I look like a true survivor, whining like a little kid
I'm still spamming after all this time
Picking up the pieces of my life with Wismen on my mind

I'm still spamming yeah yeah yeah
I'm still spamming yeah yeah yeah

Once I never could hope to win
You post down the road leaving me to spam again
The threats you made were meant to cut me down
And if the newsgroups were just a circus I'd be a clown by now

Don't you know I'm still spamming better than I ever did Deluding myself that I look like a true survivor, whining like a little
kid
I'm still spamming after all this time
Picking up the pieces of my life with Wismen on my mind

Oh the irony.

Markie Morgan, idiot shatters the irony meter when he pegged it when it was suggested he take a remedial English course for his illiteracy in these words and the insistance of a poster in another thread that some how I my posting has rsien to some legal (did he realy mean ilgeal) level of being spam I point out Wismen has aleegedly tried to have me ToS , this is likely a lie OTOH Daveheil claims he has tried and alegedly doid Han (something or other the arrl director) and Robeson and land shark and prehaps others unknown to me as well have made efforts to me ToSed (without BTW acting aginst Wismen which shows you how bad off they are although I believe Dave has tried to ToS Wismen with little sucess) and yet I am still here posting quite openly from Hughes net under my call letter without the slightest disruption other claim that they have been "bomarded" by more than 5000 get help post ing the last month (I have not been counting so I will prisionaly accept the number) as a contrast I receive (and without any relationship to the NG more than 1000 spam emails a day trying to sell me Viagara or beast enalregements or golf clubs or god knows what is next,I supect many of us receive simliar levels of true spam

Yes Robeson has quit the feild and as such I really mention him Wismen remains and has posted (based on the fact I respond about 80 perecent of his posts) roughly 600 months in the same time span, and they contain some of the vilest materail it is has been my sorry duty to see, and that behavoir is ACCEPTABLE to those complaining

Id rather not need to post get help so much Id rather wismen got help, but even Dave Hiel no freind of mine to be sure reconizesthat Wismen has become sexualy obessed with me, if having the misforutne to become the target of someone sixk sexaul obession is reason for most poster to

(Elton John/Bernnie Taupin/Mark C. Morgan, kb9rqz)
[From the album "Markie's I.Q. is Too Low For Zero"]

You could never know what it's like
When you marry a jewish/polish transexual bulldyke
And if there's a cold lonely light that shines from you You'll wind up like the wreck I hide behind those sockpuppets I use in
newsgroups

And did you think this fool could never win
Well look at me, I'm spamming again and again
I got a taste of love in a simple way
And if you need to know why I'm still spamming Wismen just post away

Don't you know I'm still spamming better than I ever did Deluding myself that I look like a true survivor, whining like a little
kid
I'm still spamming after all this time
Picking up the pieces of my life with Wismen on my mind

I'm still spamming yeah yeah yeah
I'm still spamming yeah yeah yeah

Once I never could hope to win
You post down the road leaving me to spam again
The threats you made were meant to cut me down
And if the newsgroups were just a circus I'd be a clown by now

Don't you know I'm still spamming better than I ever did Deluding myself that I look like a true survivor, whining like a little
kid
I'm still spamming after all this time
Picking up the pieces of my life with Wismen on my mind

I'm still spamming yeah yeah yeah
I'm still spamming yeah yeah yeah

How do you figure I am responsible for messing up these groups???? I have killfiled most of the trolls and do my best to not respond when they are able to bypass my filters. I am one of the few that actually post about radio and related subjects. RRAP was a mess long before I started posting here, you guys have some real winners on this group saying some pretty sick shit. You use OE6, just killfile me as I do not nym shift and you don't have to read another word I type.

If I might answer your question, what did we lose: what you lose on the moderated web blogs is annonymity. Yes, you can have annonymity more or less, but somebody somewhere has to approve your posting and your password, and they have your email, it is a bit more of a digital paper chain than on usenet.

You also lose the ability to go off topic. Some fora are more strict in this regards than others, but there it is: sometimes relating one issue to something seemingly off-topic is lost, with it, the freedom to address big picture questions.

You lose the ability to cross post.

Etc... there are many others

So your nym is a child's character and your making sexually explicit comments about an underage child. You are showing classic symptoms of pedophilia and I truly think you are a danger to any children you come into contact with. I plan to document your posts and headers and send them to the proper authorities, as you are truly sick, and have probably already acted upon your urges. Probably clear up some unsolved rape and or missing /dead children.

Keep spewing it. You just show how sick you are. Usually people that are pedophiles such as you, were molested themselves as children. Who was it? Your dad, your uncle, the guy down the street that got you high on drugs? I would ask you to just go away and leave to radio groups to people that have radios, but sexually deviant trolls don't care and in fact enjoy the disruption that it causes, so I know you won't just leave. I could killfile you, but you would just nym shift. I could use xnews, but trolls like you do not deserve my time to learn new software. So my plan is to let you say what you will, and anything that has sexually descriptive content involving children will be saved along with your header and I will at some point start sending it to different law enforcement agencies, and something may possibly come of it, or maybe not. Your the person that will have that in the back of your mind to worry about, and if you are not worried in the least, then you are truly a sociopath.

I just wished we could all start talking about radio related material and stop fighting and posting all the homo nonsense that dominates a lot of the news groups. I originally came to Usenet for the exchange of ideas and to learn. But even when I ask OT questions, I rarely get an answer or the thread will end in a trolling war.

Pretty soon, folks, Roger will awaken from his drug induced slumber and post another thirty or forty insane comments. Once the sleeping pills wear off, he will be in high form, posting insane responses to an equally imbalanced Mark Morgan.
Bear in mind that Roger is not quite "all there". He is best described as a low life. Mark is not far behind.

Both are bottom-feeders.

Do yourself and the public at large a favor while your at it.
Get good and loaded on suds and whiskey then go take a leisurely drive someplace. With luck you'll T-Bone at an intersection into a minivan full of gooks from vietnam or a pickup truck filled with illegal mexicans.
Sure, it's just a drop in the bucket but every bit helps! :)

Poor Shitball, spanked out of alt.flame for so long, everybody made fun of his cocksucker's lisp and the fact that he insists that Roger's ex is named Regina, when Roger ex-wife wan't named Regina. This is the second fuck up by Shitball aka Hewnderson, since he said Roger's ex was named Pam, previously.

Glendale WV sissy desires to be spanked and forceably greeked with a large tool. Perfer large bald men 25-35. I am a 50 something Jewish man who has a fat wallet and is very lonely. I like to jack to Shemale porn but perfer a man who is "all man", a mans man if you will.

If you think you are the one then call me at 1-304-845-0109. Ask for Roger.

And your total stupidity noted by yours.

I'm Still Spamming

(Elton John/Bernnie Taupin/Mark C. Morgan, kb9rqz)
[From the album "Markie's I.Q. is Too Low For Zero"]

You could never know what it's like
When you marry a jewish/polish transexual bulldyke
And if there's a cold lonely light that shines from you You'll wind up like the wreck I hide behind those sockpuppets I use in
newsgroups

And did you think this fool could never win
Well look at me, I'm spamming again and again
I got a taste of love in a simple way
And if you need to know why I'm still spamming Wismen just post away

Don't you know I'm still spamming better than I ever did Deluding myself that I look like a true survivor, whining like a little
kid
I'm still spamming after all this time
Picking up the pieces of my life with Wismen on my mind

I'm still spamming yeah yeah yeah
I'm still spamming yeah yeah yeah

Once I never could hope to win
You post down the road leaving me to spam again
The threats you made were meant to cut me down
And if the newsgroups were just a circus I'd be a clown by now

Deluding myself that I look like a true survivor, whining like a little

I'm still spamming after all this time

Picking up the pieces of my life with Wismen on my mind

I'm still spamming yeah yeah yeah
I'm still spamming yeah yeah yeah

>From todays News Line:

NAMES IN THE NEWS: K1MAN REFERENCES REMOVED FROM WIKIPEDIA

It appears as if all references to Glenn Baxter, K1MAN, have been removed from the on-line encyclopedia Wikipedia. According to a posting from the Wikipedia operators dated this past April 29th, the content previously posted in User Talk area of the concerning Baxter was not the sort of information that Wikipedia is intended for.

Now, trying to do a search on Wikipedia for the call sign K1MAN or any combination of Baxter's name or his name and call yields no results. The same holds true when you search for either his American Amateur Radio Association or International Amateur Radio Network.

Baxter, who has yet to pay a $21,000 fine issued by the FCC is also still not listed on the qrz.com call sign database and is still prevented from posting anything on the on-line pages on that site. (Various)

If you go to Google and look up some of the nyms that the dimwit uses, you'll find that, during the first 18 days of June, Google records these totals:

kb9rqz@hotmail.com - 333 posts
kb9rqz-mcm@hotmail.com - 97 posts kb9rqz_ars@yahoo.com - 64 posts kb9rqz-ars@hotmail.com - 238 posts konstans@hotmail.com - 296 posts
kb9rqz@amsat.org - 55 posts

That's a grand total of 1083 posts (or 60 posts per day), most of which simply say "get help" and therefore constitute a special kind of spam called a "spew." There are probably more posts, but I don't have a list of all of the dimwit's nyms.

Poor Shitball, spanked out of alt.flame for so long, everybody made fun
of his cocksucker's lisp and the fact that he insists that Roger's ex is named Regina, when Roger ex-wife wan't named Regina. This is the second fuck up by Shitball aka Hewnderson, since he said Roger's ex was named Pam, previously.

and for each of those post there is a post of Roger Wismen and/or Robeson or one of the lessort filthmongers

but then you support the posting of libel obviously

You brought those people here the same way that a turd attracts flies.

To handle the problem, you take care of the turd first, and then you take

The boy just don't get it, does he? He needs to lose his ISP. Maybe THEN he'll start to figure things out just a little bit.

I'm going to send a letter by regular mail, just like someone on here suggested. Someone at Hughes just HAS to realize they have an abusive customer, and then they'll take action.

These are the numbers of current, unexpired amateur radio licenses held by individuals on the stated dates, and the percentage of the total number of active licenses that class contains:

As of May 14, 2000:

Novice - 49,329 (7.3%)
Technician - 205,394 (30.4%)
Technician Plus - 128,860 (19.1%)
General - 112,677 (16.7%)
Advanced - 99,782 (14.8%)
Extra - 78,750 (11.7%)

Total Tech/TechPlus - 334,254 (49.5%)

Total General/Advanced/Extra - 291,209 (43.2%)

Total all classes - 674,792

As of June 15, 2006:

Novice - 24,949 (3.8%) [decrease of 24,380]
Technician - 281,657 (42.8%) [increase of 76,263]
Technician Plus - 38,278 (5.8%) [decrease of 90,582]
General - 132,919 (20.2%) [increase of 20,242]
Advanced - 71,963 (10.9%) [decrease of 27,819]
Extra - 108,175 (16.4%) [increase of 29,425]

Total Tech/TechPlus - 319,935 (48.6%) [decrease of 14,319]

Total General/Advanced/Extra - 313,057 (47.6%) [increase of 21,848]

Total all classes - 657,941 (decrease of 16,851)

Note that these totals do not include licenses that have expired but are in the grace period.

They also do not include club, military, RACES or other station-only licenses.

Note also that effective April 15, 2000, new Novice, Technician Plus and Advanced licenses are no longer issued.

Since April 15, 2000, FCC has renewed all existing Technician Plus licenses as Technician. It is therefore informative to consider the totals of the two classes, since the Technician class includes a significant number of Technician Plus licenses renewed as Technician.

You have no fucking idea of what Hughes does or doesn't think. You are just spouting whatever pleases you.

> that you do show you to be a gay bashing bigot

There was no mention of gays in any of my posts. It seems that YOU are the one who plays that stupid game, and it isn't working.

> if you can explain to me in rational terms why pWismen posting that I > rape boy is acceptable and Get is help I'll stop

I never said that. Don't try to put words into my mouth, you pathetic little mental midget.

And as to the position you think that Hughes is taking, let me tell you a little story about Wiseman and an ISP he had named Stratuswave.

At first an admin from Stratuswave thought that he was defending Wiseman's so-called free speech rights when people complained, and the admin refused to listen to complaints about Wiseman.

After a while, enough email and regular mail kept arriving at the Wheeling offices that the admin was overridden by his own boss (I know because I mailed the boss at his home address). Wiseman was kicked off Stratuswave in spite of his posturing. It was very similar to your own situation.

So don't get too confident, prick face. Continuing letters to an ISP do make a difference. I hope that you become history "real soon now" at Hughes. You richly deserve it.

I have him in my killfile 16 times. Looks like it's paying off as I rarely have to read his spew. Fortunately most of the ones that quote him in their reply to his B.S. posts are in my killfile also, the rest I just try to ignore.

Oh Really I know you have been complaining to them for several months

you and others I know Hughes contacted months when frankly the number my posts was even higher for my side of the story, and I know what what was aid in that conversation

well given the basis of your complaints is that I reply "get help" to Wismens bazare acustions I did see the simlarity

but you may be able to convince someone that I get terminated from hughes net

that would only prove you are good enough at lying

Not quite. Testing on rules, regulations and technical knowledge is a bit different than testing on one specific mode of communication. I use CW, but considered the continued archaic CW testing requirement to be silly and outdated. It should have been dropped 30 years ago.

We give driving tests on the ability to drive the car and follow the regulations. We don't test on the proper operation of a buggy whip or care and feeding of horses. While people still enjoy riding horses and driving around in buggies, they do this of their own free will and no one is forcing it on them through a testing process to get a driver's license. The horse as a general means of transportation is over. We have evolved beyond that, but people still ride horses for fun and enjoyment and the government does have to force it on individuals just in case we ever have to go back to using horses for transportation in an extreme emergency.

5 WPM is easy. esp if you use Farnsworth.

i'm at 18 WPM, and i can copy contest exchanges at 30 WPM. i haven't made a CW QSO in 10 years!

i think the code requirement should be 13 WPM plus for the upper classes.

easy for you

not for me

I spent 5 years in my teens taking a test every couple of weeks towrds the end. I did get so I might pass either the sending or receiving on a given day but never both guess from that data I suspect isf I had the time and schedule I could mange to pass a receiving or better still a sending test in roughly a year bt I don't my schedule leaves very busy eroids and very slow eriods

but all this is beside the point nothing in the treaty give the USA the requirement to make such a test and nothing in the consitiotn reglates the matter so the power to use hf specturm is resvresed byt eh 10th amend to the states or the people themselves (para the constititon

unless the power to impose a code test can be shown to exist in other section such preahps shwoing that it is "nessacary and proper" an arguement that could have been made say when the miltary needed to warn us of freqs they were suing in cw or some other argument, the FCC and
th congress lack the legeal power to maintain the test if challanged, an expensive and unpleasent task

> i think the code requirement should be 13 WPM plus for the upper classes.

Dear Mr President:

The FCC has been dumbing down ham radio for several years now. This has hurt the integrity of the service and is bad for America. They are planning to dumb it down again really soon now and their plan will make ham radio like CB and it will be bad for America. We already have one CB service on HF, we don't need two. Please pressure the FCC to endorse the following items for the good of the service and America. I wish you could run again for a third term, I would vote for you. I'm glad Al Gore wasn't able to steal the election, and John Kerry would have been a disaster, he'd be kissing terrorist butts and brown nosing them. Thanks for the fine job you're doing protecting and leading America.

No more automatic renewals. Individuals must retest and pass all elements required for their license class.

The passing score for written exams needs to be raised to 85%.

Code elements should be 13 wpm for General, and 20 wpm for Extra.

Make the no-code license one year non-renewable.

I'm sure this very erudite letter, full of specific facts and the results of many studies to prove it's point will immediately cause the President to put aside all petty concerns (like the Middle East, energy problems, changes in Medicare, investigations of members of his party and staff, Iran's nuclear program, North Korea's ICBM test, etc.) and order the FCC to get rid of all no code Hams.

I am not a HAM but my brother is. The main reason they came up with the idea of the no code license was to spark interest in Amateur Radio. The hobbie is getting to be near extinct in the 21st century compared to the interest of the 1950's to 2000.

What is the purpose of beginners' licences?

Ham Radio is a technical pursuit and is distinct from "CB Radio" which latter is the name for the hobby for those who buy their rigs off-the-shelf and send them back to the shop if ever needing repair.

Radio Hams are qualified to build and operate their own equipment, and a (admittedly rudimentary) qualification is needed. However, that qualification is easily passed by otherwise-unqualified self-taught 14-year-olds who have the right motivation. Indeed, anybody with the right motivation would not find it to be a hurdle, and so if anybody did so find it, then their suitability to be a Radio Ham would be called into question.

As such 14-year-olds have shown themselves for years able to pass the exam at that level, what need has their ever been to reduce the standard below that of the mental age of a 14-year-old?

What need therefore, to introduce examinations that not only can 6-year-olds pass after two days tuition, but that intellectually-challenged abusive social misfits of adult years are incapable of passing? Such adults couldn't even pass the test of a 14-year-old, so it was completely pointless to make them look even stupider by them being unable to pass a test aimed at 6-year-olds!

Yankland had a Novice Licence for some years, and it has now been discontinued. There is no reason to have any other similar beginners' licences anywhere in the world.

In Britland, the M3/CB Fools' Licence scheme has proved to be a gangrenous degeneration because, where there has been the natural lifeblood of technical people, that blood has been cut off, and those people put off, by the insulting requirement for them to sit an examination at the kindergarten level.

It is time for self-respecting _REAL_ Radio Hams all over the world to petition their respective governments to have these simpletons' licences

abolished. After all, what grown man would want to known as someone who has struggled to pass an exam aimed at 6-year-olds? None at all! What grown man would want a photograph published of him grinning with pleasure that he's passe an exam aimed at 6-year-olds? None at all!

If 14-year-olds can do it, then anybody sufficiently well motivated to be a Radio Ham can do it.

If nothing else, the gratuitously insulting and grossly offensive posts to these NG by those who hold the licences and by those who promote them (Including, most disgracefully, the master instructor for the scheme in Britland) suggest that such people are not now and cannot ever be considered to be part of the gentlemanly traditions of Radio Hammery.

5 WPM is do-able! My 4 1/2 year granddaughter copies 5 wpm! Her 10 year old brother, who learned it in Cub Scouts, taught her. And, she can't even spell yet! But, she knows the alphabet from watching TV.

Some people have DIFFICULTY learning Morse Code, real difficulty!

I have taught Morse Code off and on for 40 years and from total ignorance to 100% success in 8 hours, 2 hours a week for 4 weeks [plus a little home practice. It is practice [work] that makes it successful.]

Some people can learn the code but suffer from "TEST STRESS". They can copy it comfortably in their home or their surroundings; but, when they have to demonstrate that skill in front of a 'WITNESS' who has pass/fail power, they tense up and fail. That's understandable and can be worked with.

Some people are dyslexic. But, they can hear it and talk it out, but can't get it on paper. But, they learned the code.

If you can learn the english alphabet, if you can learn the english language, if you can read this email then you CAN LEARN Morse Code at 5 WPM. You may never progress to 20 wpm [It took me 24 months at 1 hour of practice a day every day to progress from 5 to 20 wpm] but 5 wpm can be learned.

Teaching methods, practice criteria and testing/verification methods become critical for those with difficulty.

I'll top post again for brevity and getting to the point.

I like CW! It is most likely going away as a requirement. I'm sad at this.

Amateur radio will change as a result. Everything changes. Hopefully the changes will be positive.

5233. Oil Independence Day 2006

High gas prices have created a new group of people -
"pump grumblers."
When pumping our high priced gas, we grumble words of resentment, while feeling powerless. We need gas, so we pay the price. Standing as a individual we are powerless, but together our voices would be heard.
America is a strong, independent country.
When John Kennedy proposed we put a man on the moon, a goal and time line was set. American determination made it happen. Let's apply the same initiative to independence of oil through alternative energy research and use. We already have brilliant minds who are making great strides towards this goal.
Demand that the President stand up for us.
Ask him to support Alternative energy to free us from oil dependence,
starting today. Millions of letters cannot be ignored.

Write a paper letter before July 4 to the President.
Urge friends and family to do the same.
President Bush

I passed it at 14 but I would have done it at 12 if licences had been available to 12 year olds.
The 14 year limit was nonsensical as all other restricted activities are 16 or 18 AFAIK.

No, it's a statement of historic fact, as determined by the licensing authorities. But it's incorrct -- anyone who can't copy 5 wpm deserves a license, but it's Citizen's Band.

A further valid statement would be that anyone with an IQ approaching 100 can learn to copy 5 wpm. That's less than one character every two seconds, which gives tons of time to recognize and write the single character before the next one begins. Dyslexia cannot apply, unless it is dyslexia that affects the remembered dot/dash pattern of a single character.

jesus, let's just do away with the written test and the CW test. let's just open the doors to anyone. we'll set up a webpage at the ARRL site, and you'll just point and click. it will be as easy as becoming a Reverend.

you could license your dog, a terrorist, anyone.

honestly, i am very glad there are minimum requirements. this keeps out people who are not serious about the hobby. people who don't know what they are doing should not be transmitting (esp on HF).

this whole CW debate is what we call the dumbing down of America.

i mean we have minimum standards for driving in America or becoming a citizen, why is ham radio so different?

i have an idea. get rid of the CW and triple the difficulty of the written test. there is certain element of society, which needs to be kept out of the HF spectrum.

When I got my driver's license in 1952, the driving test was required to be taken on a stick shift vehicle. Do you think that should still be a requirement?

NO! Don't label another person! It is wrong to label! Particularly when you do not know any of his/her life's circumstances.

I said some people have difficulty learning or learning one particular subject.

It is reported that Albert Einstein had difficulty learning Calculus. The man was a Physics genius but needed help with advanced math.

I hold a degree in engineering and have completed four years of seminary, but I have not been able to learn conversational SPANISH. [About two years after ordination the Cardinal requested that I learn Spanish at the seminary . After two months the instructor approved my withdrawal from the class. I could learn vocabulary, how to read, write and the grammar for spanish, but my ear does not hear spanish. Total immersion in a Spanish speaking community would be the way for me to learn.]

I still say, anyone who can learn an/the alphabet can learn Morse Code. For those with difficulty, the solution to the issue is teaching METHODs not the student's difficulty. Any alphabet is recognizing sound patterns. Words are simply combinations of sound patterns.

For 'an_old_friend' I would begin by teaching an alphabet of SOUND PATTERNS. No requirement for speed. Just focus on sound patterns. Keep it very simple. Each two hour lesson would focus on no more than 7 letters until well heard. Then move to SOUND PATTERNS that are close to or similar to those [s]he has learned and is mastering. [Example: learn the sound patterns for 'A', 'W', and 'J' repeat until they are instantly recognized. Then move on to 'N' 'D', 'B', etc. Don't count 'dots' or 'dashes' but hear sound patterns.]

The next two hour session, one week later, would begin with a review then add 'T, M, O' followed by 'E, I, S, H'. Drill sound patterns. Then end the session by sending simple words using the 1/2 of the alphabet that has been studied. Speed is NOT a requirement! Accuracy is! If Farnsworth timing at 18 wpm is a roadblock, then change practice timing to 13 wpm or 10 wpm or 7 1/2 wpm or 5 wpm or 3 wpm. SPEED is NOT a REQUIREMENT! Accuracy is!

The next two weeks complete the alphabet. Week five would include the numbers and common punctuation. [5 sound character patterns and 6 sound character patterns].

Having said all this, my defense of CW is not any legal requirement. It is simply the best way to work rare DX. Much less power required. Much less bandwidth required. Much more discernible [copyable] in a pile. And, it is fun!

it was differential geometry that Einstein was unfamiliar with. when formulating relativity, he realized that he needed tools that he was not familiar with. so he went to a mathematician friend and learned which tools he needed.

please understand this in the context of 1912. differential geometry was fairly new back then, i believe it came from Riemann.

it's possible for some branches of math and physics to be relatively arcane. for instance, de Borges attempted proofs use operator theory. most mathematics students cannot read his papers. in fact, most professional mathematicians can't read them either. the only reason that de Borges proof of Bieberbach became accepted is that it was rewritten by other Europeans.

it's not uncommon for a theoretical physicist to have to learn a new branch of math to solve a problem. for instance, string theorists working on the landscape turned to statistics.

prehaps you are trying to be helpfull

you are coming off insulting and condesnding that metodalogy was tried and my ears lose the older set of patterns in a few day before I get a hold of the next set fun for you the migraine headaches I get listening to any of it is not fun none enjoys pain on that level

yes I might be ableto learn well enough now with only a receive or tranmited test (and if I were going to try it would be to send) so I don't have to listen to it

you have fun with fine go for it Bear in mind I think Mose and esp the attiudes around are bad for the ARS but I support your freedom to disagree and even to just do something I consider nonproducitve just for sheer joy of it

I expect the same however for myself relativity utilizes tensor calculus, which is a few semesters beyond the basic integral calculus taught to many college students. even today, relativity is viewed as fairly knotty. general relativity really isn't tackled until graduate school.

it's my understanding that Einstein was very good at math. to be a lowly patent clerk and revolutionize physics requires real skill.

what is advanced math? multivariable calculus and ordinary differential equations are viewed as advanced by the general population, however millions of people have learned the basics of these. in contrast, there are papers in number theory that can only be a read by a dozen people on the planet.

it's partially due to our own limitations as humans.

So you're saying CB'ers have more pull because there are more of them? Hmmm.
You might be right, but we're dealing with President Bush here. He don't listen to Lazy Stupid people. If listened to what Lazy stupid people wanted, we'd be cutting and running from Iraq like the Democrats want and he ain't cutting and running.

There's still hope. Send that email. Save amateur radio and shortwave.

So what is your point? Is it that CBers are stupid? Or is it that CBers vote democrat?
If Bush didn't listen to "Lazy Stupid" people, we would not even be in Iraq.
Maybe you missed it when they never found any WMDs in Iraq, which is why we went to begin with. He obviously listens to "Lazy Stupid" people, like Russian intelligence. I'm sure if you try hard enough, he will even listen to you.
Before you label me a liberal, I voted for Bush

No it isn't.

Some things in life require you do a little work to enjoy their benefits.
You don't want to learn CW, you shouldn't be allowed on ham radio.

And Five words per minute ain't a code test. I can fart five words per minute. Anyone that can't learn 5 wpm is either lazy or a tard and should stick to CB, FRS, and cell phones.

We gave those Techs the no code license because some said they weren't interested in HF and wanted the freedom experiment with new modes, but that's not what happened. All we got was a bunch of appliance operators plugging up repeaters. Maybe only two or three percent are doing digital, new modes, satellites, scatter, aurora, DX, etc. everyone else is gabbing on a microphone like CB'ers waiting for the FCC's R & O to come out.

Well, Larry, it took you to the last sentence, but you did actually lurch into the problem.
Within seconds after learning what dah-dit-dit-dah means (or dit-dah-dah-dit, for that matter), I fail to accurately recognize them when they are sent again. Hundreds of tries -- all failures, all mine.

From your lofty perch, as a successful Morse Code user, you look down on me.
You could stand to learn a little humility. It would serve you and the amateur community better than dah-dit-dah any day.

prehaps you are right

OTOH I personaly don'y know I realy want UBL caputred given the way the media and people seems to think they might say well the war on terror is over, we won, and thereby get an even bigger shock when AlQueda next hits us.

Too bad, indeed. Turns out we had him cornered and apparently deliberately let him go. The plan was to get Saddam from the beginning.
OIL again. Turf battles and internal "coups" within the White House needlessly sacrificed American lives and dropped the ball on terrorism.

The "boys at Langley" don't wield power to think and act anymore. Your VP has seen to it that his own boys in the Pentagon have taken over that business. Kill the messenger. Langley had it correct when they said Iraq didn't have WMD. That's what go Wilson in trouble, remember?

should we get rid of the written test because people can't learn decibels and basic algebra?

perhaps the CW test could have a question pool similar to the written. you could memorize all the answers. i am actually dead serious. or standardize the test so that the output is always like a QSO in super morse. there are ways to make the test easier.

hmm, or we could have an option that you can view the CW in a spectrogram and decode it visually.

It matters not. When management lacks the same talent, engineers will be chosen for economic rather than practical reasons. Outsourcing to India and H1B visas are proof. The fact that India has yet to produce a single Intel or Microsoft or H-P or Sony is lost on those whose who fawn over those rote trained hordes.

Bill you are 100% wrong!

I am a right wing Republican, socially conservative, I attempt to be morally correct [that makes me politically incorrect quite often], and Conservative Christian [Clergyman]. I favor a very strong military [prior to my retirement from engineering, I served for 6 years as Program Chief Engineer on the USAF MX Missile (WS-118) RS/RV].

I believe the USA Constitution must be read and understood in the social context in which it was written. Changes should be by amendment not judicial agenda.

See, labels can be 100% incorrect when you don't know the other person's life story.

Hi there.

Just a quick thought. I will not jump into the code vs. no-code fray. That said, I'd like to pass on an experience I had with a college professor friend of mine many years ago, now passed (Doc Bronfield WA2SMW). I learned CW at the age of 9 using flashing light. Now age 57. Got my novice at age 14 and general at age 15. The extra came easy as did 30 wpm plus CW. Not so with my friend Doc. He tried and tried, and then we realized that he had aural dyslexia. So I had an idea. With the help of local engineering types. They built a keyer that could sent different frequencies slightly for the dits and dahs. That was what he needed to get his code speed up and pass the general using the keyer during a FCC test. Here's what I believe should happen with CW. When I passed my extra there were no extra class operating privileges issued, but the FCC issued a nice Extra class certificate for the accomplishment (which I still have). I suggest we leave the 5 wpm code requirement in place as it now is, but go back to issuing the 20 wpm certificate by VE's. That would, perhaps, satisfy, the pro-code folk? It would reward the accomplishment without necessarily making it an Extra class requirement.

$400,000,000,000 and counting. Do you honestly feel safer? Not only do we have to deal with Iraq, but now we have to deal with N. Korea and Iran, situations that were exacerbated by lumping them into the "Axis of Evil", whatever that is.

He'll sell out just like all the other politicians. If the energy companies want to run roughshod over our HF with BPL, or if cell phone companies want to buy our higher frequency bands, they will. The Golden Rule: He who has the gold rules.

MX missiles have never been launched operationally. They were decommissioned by treaty after the fall of the Soviet Union.

If they had been used WE wouldn't be here!

no bout honest does one need to have the Formulas for adding resistor (and cap and inductors i) series and paralell memorized.. ithink more question on operating practices rules and rules would better serve us than data we unlikely to need to use suddenly in the feild

I have offered such as an possible acomodation since I have in fact done a few QSO's almost exactly that way (used a computer to decode

what it could and used my eye to fill in the blanks, that has me my 3 CW EME QSO) if alll I needed to do was decode a spectrgraph of Morse and had TIME to work on on without have to hold any of the QSO in my head I (believe) could do that (with some prep work of course)

I might also be just able to use the most extreme accomodation avalible letter by letter (which elimates what beomce quickly a major probem for me was the an I or 2 e's btw)but the VE teams around the last place I ived were unwilling with out and MD signing off and I only ever saw a phd and more likely MSSW about it , that these contacts in the distant past (since I have learned ways of coping on my own) Indeed Robeson made one of his early flaiming attack period on that very subject when in his stlaking of me he learned of my posting to various support forums for Dyslexics and othe rrelated condictions for asking "wht would a MD that does not deal with LDs need in in order to medical cerify the existance of the condiction, and Robeson a once very comon poster hasrenewed that flame attack several times since

I have never inquired of the team roud here since by the time I became settled enough to look into that the NPRM came out and since even those levels would take a extensive prep, it did not seem worth while since it seem clear we will son have at least No Code general if not Extra

No, Not kick them off. When their license comes up for renewel they

I wanted a nickname that would help me connect with new hams and nickle upgrades on the internet. I had two good nicknames picked out but I couldn't decide which one to use, so I flipped a coin. It was either going to be 'Slow Code' or 'Hey Stupid'.

Hope that answered a few questions. :-)

I would also add that you must be able to prove that you can trace your ancestry back to 1776 or earlier in order to hold an Amateur Radio License as only decedents, of real Americans around at the time of the Revolutionary War, should be allowed to possess a license.

Also, that you not be allowed to operate any tube gear. It sucks too much electricity and is helping to destroy the environment.

You must build your own equipment. Ban all manufacturers of amateur gear, unless of course, it is made in America in which case a 200% tariff should be added to help fund the FCC with all this additional testing that you would now require.

All amateur operators must also pass a spelling and grammar test. They must not be overweight and have perfect hygiene and never smell at any hamfests - especially Dayton.

Once you start riding an electric cart at Dayton or any other hamfest, your Amateur Radio license is immediately revoked.

There are probably some other items that need to be added to the list of requirements, but I will submit those to these groups later.

Another positive side of the proposal is that we could eliminate a lot of tickets. Think how quiet the bands would be for a little while....MUCH LESS QRM! Of course that would change when the FCC reassigned (auctioned) those now unused freqs to the commercial users.
Heck, you could do BPL through out the old ham spectrum. There wouldn't be enough Ham clout left to stop it. Who would even notice! Cheap Internet! GO FOR IT ! .... IMs instead of QSOs.......Great idea.
Keep those wheels turning. You might luck into another winner of an idea! George

Dr. Nagel,

You please listen to me, I get PhD from big university. My university so expensive most American can't buy cafeteria lunch.

Long time ago, many years, I make secret lair in Bikini Atoll. American call it that, but I rename to Soong's Micronesian Micronation. It has nice ring to it.

Anyway, I build androids and mind my own business, but one day I monitor Americans and they say they blow up my island. Some missile test, but I say waste of perfectly good rocks.

I detect submarine with my acoustics, and I transmit on ELF and say "Don't blow up my island please!" But my Engrish so bad, they get confused and jam me with much megawatts. I not give up though. I build big ideograph out of bamboo, it say "Don't blow up my island thanks". But they have no analyst that read my language. I escape in nick of time in my junk ship.

look at picture, see big hole in middle of island?
http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Bikini_Atoll

MX missile destroy me. Now I teach dumb punk how to repair personal computer. I get revenge. I build big contest station and beat everyone.

Soong

NOPE! The MX missile has 100% nothing to do with the Bikini Tests! Those tests were conducted after WWII and ended in the 1950s. The MX missile initial deployment was 1985.

By today's standards, the Bikini tests were low yield [~20KT] fission devices. Today's standard is moderate yields [~300 to 500 KT] fission-fusion devices.

MX has nothing to do with Bikini Atoll.

Have fun building your androids.

5509. Morons on 20 Meters

Last weekend I was zooming around the 20 meter bands when I heard these morons on 14.275 Mhz talking about Glenn Baxter, and one of them was Disco Dan W4NTI. Now I can understand that these "cry-babies" are pissed off at Baxter and VE7KFM, but you would think these morons would have better things to talk about them those two. I mean there are a million other things they should talk about instead of those two, I mean I can come up with millions of topics that don't relate to Baxter or VE7KFM. But no, these inbred are obsessed with those two that their on air behavior is almost embarrassing. They are in fact a primary example of radio operators who take their hobby to seriously and either need to back off of it for a while or be removed from the service, because like Baxter and VE7KFM, their behavior is not wanted on the amateur bands. No amateur should bad mouth another amateur on the air, especially on a HF band.

Since I am of Native American ancestry, the airwaves belong to my people.
Therefore all non Native Americans must immediately surrender their license.
We will allow you to monitor transmissions as we plan to use the airwaves to advertise our casinos.

No, I see a newsgroup clown that can't accept the fact that this man learned to succeed despite his dyslexia. Instead of offering ideas that could help him learn code you decide to insult him. You sit and whine about how ham radio is going to shit because they allow no code tech licensing and possibly doing away with code altogether. But you missed the biggest point with ham radio it was to help people. Did you help this man by offering alternative options to learn code? No, you insult him instead. It is you and your kind that will be the downfall of ham radio. Blame yourself.

Why do you find the need to boost your (lack of) self-confidence by insulting this person by comparing him to Mark? Mark chooses to sit on his ass sucking the entitlement system dry and contributing nothing to society, while this person decided to make the best of his what God gave him and he contributes to the same entitlement system that Mark chooses to deplete.

Earl you are not the Pearl of wisdom, you are the faux Pearl that trolls to enhance your (lack of) self-esteem.

Something I just thought of at the spur of the moment (not to mention keeps me on topic), some disabled person should sue to remove ALL code requirements, or offer an exclusion to those with disabilities to not have to take ANY code test under the Americans with Disability Act. I'm sure that person could even get a free ACLU lawyer to handle it.

India is not a country we rely on to build super companies (for lack of a better term). Take a look at what we send to India. Toxic chemical factories that would be choked to death by special interest groups and politicians. We also outsource technical support, which is a waste of time and money, good thing companies don't pay them much, but it's a cheap way of saying "we have tech support" without truly having it. Look at the shoe mfg. industry, all moved to third world slave labor countries. Good for the shoe industry as they no longer have to deal with unions and we keep management and development in countries that have the talent and resources to maintain state of the art products. Look at how the auto industry has changed. They sent 1000s of jobs overseas to cut down on union labor (with management and R&D in the US), and the Japs are opening plants in the US (with management and R&D in Japan) that will never deal with the UAW. I could go on forever with this post (and talk about NAFTA), but will end my rave at this point. BTW, changed subject header as it didn't seem to fit. I would have trimmed a few NGs but am unsure what groups you are subscribed to.

Many years ago, 1950s, there was a very active 10 meter ham in Danvers, Massachusetts, during the period of Class A, B and C licenses. He was an arthritic quadriplegic. He was wheel chair bound, lived alone, and required visiting help to get into and out of bed and have his meals prepared and served.

He had a Class C [Conditional] license. He learned to copy 'read' CW in his head although he did not have the ability to send. I don't think he would consider a lawsuit appropriate.

Some of the OTs on this list may have worked him. W1JFS, Les MacCrakin. God Rest His Soul.

Having hired many engineers in my lifetime I can state that good engineers meet several criteria:

o meet the technical requirements established by your customer,

o meet the schedule established by your customer,

o meet the costs established by your customer.

Economics is only 1/3 of good engineering talent.

Well I described a number of alternatives to learning and he persists in saying he cannot learn code. Now I have not insulted him that I know of (although it's difficult to predict what one might take as an insult). However, if someone truly is incapable of learning code, then they are unable to learn to understand the spoken word and to speak. The fact that he can speak and understand the spoken word means he can learn code at the basic level of 5wpm. He is his own biggest enemy.

The FCC has already addressed the issue by allowing and requiring the VEs to accommodate the handicapped. They may use lights, pressure pulses, or (for severely handicapped person) send individual letters and ask the person the letters as they send them, etc. They can use a sending test in place of a receiving test. Sending is generally quite a bit easier than copying. The main thing on any accommodation is to contact the VEs in advance.

I suspect if the ACLU were to try to take it to court, those handicapped individuals who have passed the code would line up in droves to testify against the ACLU. Those who are handicapped often don't want to be pampered, especially in those areas where they are successful.

A completely deaf person can speak and read lips but he/she still cannot even hear Morse code. What you need to understand is that something that seems normal to you is missing in some people. If an amateur radio license required dunking a basketball, could you do it? As one who can dunk a basketball, I can tell you all you need is enough will and effort and you can do it.

I was unaware of your offers of alternative measures as it wasn't in this thread. I agree, if he has alternatives at his disposal, it's on him to take advantage of them.

May word begin to look for the accololypse I agree with every word in a post from Dr Death

aloouth the use of this story doess illustrate what is called in some circle "cripple casts" where the more visible handicaps claim if they greater entitlement to accomodation

and as I have said it has been disucussed aclu is not interested and a few people I know are looking for an antonry to take it on, however few are willing as long as the FCC contiues to dangle the likehood they would act in less than the 5 or years prusuing that would take

My point exactly. Recruiting foreign eng talent is driven primarily by economic reasons. The oft repeated lament by corporate flacks and

With deaf people use can use a light or a subwoofer for them to copy code. I don't want to stereotype deaf people, but I have found many of them to be hooked on entitlements and expect unreasonable accommodations. I have a relative that refuses to wear a hearing aid, and then gets angry when there are communication problems. This person is physically able to work; yet sits around on my tax dollars playing the feel sorry for me card.

all the accomodation I want is my own hearing aid in this is my trusty code reader

OTOH since that does absicaly oviate the the test I beleive fairness demands I support ending the tst all together as serving no legitimate

Deaf persons have succussfully completed the code portion of the testing at all levels of speed. Some use a vibrator attached to their wrist. Others us a light. As mentioned elsewhere "never say never".

I do not have a personal problem with deaf people. If you would leave my post intact maybe you and others would comprehend that. You just want to turn what was an on topic post into a flame war. You are not worth the time and effort. <plonk>

But that certainly doesn't satisfy the letter of the regulations.
To do that, they must "copy by ear".

If I don my knee braces, I still can. Can you?

The point is that some things are possible for each individual and other things are impossible. Anybody who can't dunk a basketball or pass a MENSA exam should know how a person feels when they can't learn Morse code.
I personally think it would improve the ARS to only allow MENSA engineers to be a member. How does that make you feel?

One of the brightest engineers I know, who has a commercial FCC license and was the engineer at an AM broadcast station, couldn't get past 5wpm so he was condemned to Tech class for 30 years. He knows more about radio than any ten other hams.

Cecil as good as it is your analogy still fails thanks to the fact that if I can drunk (and I have no idea wether I can or not) it only means something In Basketball. now if one inabilty to duck a basketball barred them from all sports then you rise closer to the level of what the code test is in the ARS

What you don't seem to realize is that dunking a basketball and knowing Morse code are equally useful in the ARS.

Not a correct analogy. For starters, completely deaf people have learned the Morse code. Flashing lights and pulse pads have served their needs. Just as they have learned to speak and read lips, they can learn alternative methods of using code.

The 5wpm level is more equivalent to dunking a basketball in a basket that is just above head height rather than regulation professional height. Under those conditions, anyone can dunk a basketball.

The biggest reasons people "cannot" learn code are very simple.

1. They don't really want to and so subconsciously resist.
2. They have been subjected to poor training methods.
3. No one's ever taught them correct practice methods.
4. They have developed unrealistic expectations of the level of effort required.
5. Due to bad experiences resulting from the above items, they've convinced themselves they can't learn and so create a self-fulfilling prophecy.

Every problem that Sal has described has afflicted almost every student of Morse code (except perhaps for the very rare code geniuses). Forgetting letters right after learning them? Been there, done that. Confusing letters? Been there, done that. I've had to bow out of QSOs because my brain freezes up and refuses to keep copying.

It took me 3 months of daily practice of an hour or more every day to get to 5wpm. That's over 90 hours. The average person only needs about 30 hours. I experienced every problem that "Sal" has mentioned. I eventually went on to master the 20wpm. That took 9 months of the same intensive daily practice, over 270 hours. Fortunately I wasn't hobbled by the expectation of learning it in a few weeks. Luckily no one had ever told me I could learn it in a few days or weeks. So I just kept at it for however long it took.

True enough but that accommodation has been accepted for a very long time.
The regulations also said that they must be by hand. A sending test hasn't been used in decades except as an accommodation for people with hearing problems, etc. The FCC itself had stopped administering a sending test before they turned the testing over to the amateur community.

But the letter of the law says they must receive Morse code by ear. Anything else is a violation of that law. It's try 5 years at 40minute per day, I frankly prefer not to do the math to come up with the nuber of hours

and still NO sucess

now of course if you respond to me at all you blame my metohod or my unkonwn to you teachers etc.

everything to avoid the central issue why is Code knowledge more important than the rest of Ham radio combined that is the issue of course I say more important since their question in pools about cw that tip it from equal to the rest to more important

Well the accommodation has been used and accepted for a very long time. The regs also say send by hand but no one has administered a sending test in decades except as an accommodation to individuals with difficulty in receiving.

Your life guard analogy doesn't hold up either. Instead it would be like allowing the life guard to use a row boat instead of swimming out to the victim.

You have just admitted that the Morse code test has been irreversibly compromised already. A deaf person holding an HF ham license cannot hear an SOS so the entire purpose of forcing him to learn Morse code is bogus. He is going to be using a digital mode, not sitting there with his hand on the speaker waiting to feel an SOS from a sinking ship that doesn't even have CW capability anymore.

Believe me, this guy shed tears when he couldn't get past 10 wpm. He has a physical mental tick every few seconds, akin to epilepsy, that causes him to lose time. He cannot speak one minute of continuous speech much less receive one minute of continuous Morse code. When he speaks, some of the time is silence while his brain is out to lunch. But when he does speak it is worth ten times the average person's utterances. He is an engineering genius.

That's what they are replacing the CW test with, the slam dunk. Now all

I think most of the RRCB regulars have pretty much ignored him as of late.

Why not get rid of the code? Really, why not make the written exam easier? Just make exams covers enough to make sure some idiot doesn't kill themselves or some body else.

Have only one class of license called "Amateur Radio License", with full access to all bands. No matter what class a person holds now it would be renewed as only "Amateur Radio License". Novices would be grandfathered in.You couldn't get any worse class of ham than we do with the 20wpm wonders.

You have obviously not been on 20 Meters in some time.
14.275 is THE NEW toilet bowl of ham radio.

Some say it may even come close to soon taking the place of the INFAMOUS 14.313 mHz of years ago.

Just park your dial there and you'll hear a whole cast of rejects, both old and new, some of em from the old 14.313 freq history also and parts of 75 Meters.

CB'ers take note also - these are all USB freqs.

As the guy in Florida (I think his name was "Bagel Bernie") used to say: "ENJOY - Ya've earned it!"

Note: I have not yet heard the infamous "Bathroom Man" of Year's past on there (He was in Az by the way) but hopefully he will be joining the fray soon too!

I don't think you insulted me -- it was whoever said I don't deserve a license.

However, I do think it's a bit of a stretch to say that I can learn code just because I can speak and understand words. You should see what my raw typing looks like before I go back and fix it prior to hitting send (or should I say "sned," which was what I typed the first time -- typically four or five of those per line.) It's pretty bad.

I'm thinking of trying to learn the dits and dahs as strings of written dots and dashes on paper. According to everything I've been told or exposed to, that is not recommended. All the training says the goal is to perceive each letter as a consolidated unit of sounds without any intermediate translation steps. Well, since I'm positive that isn't working, particularly for characters of four or more elements ... maybe a graphical alternative is in order.

The ARRL VEC will not premite that in code even as an accomdation

but it isn't allowed by the largest organiztion involed in code testing, the erefusual of the Code testing side to enage in any meanfull compromises is what finaly convinced to to aid and fight the

You have extracted something from my post that was never there. No one has ever said that the purpose of hams knowing code was to hear a ship sending an SOS.

In addition, he might have a light rigged for cw, which he could see as he moved about the room.

Digital modes fail on a regular basis due to static, auroras, etc. It's a good idea to have a non-voice, non-computer alternative.

Since the late 80's, he could have gotten a medical waiver for the speeds higher than 5wpm. His case proves my point though. i.e. He did learn the spoken language despite his problem. He did learn the 5wpm despite his problem. His problem manifests itself in dealing fluently with the spoken language and also manifests itself in dealing with higher code speeds.

A problem that would affect the ability to learn code affects the ability to deal with the aural/spoken language.

The highest level of interest for learning the code is among the young.

1. Incorrect training methods. These abound. There are more bad ones than good ones around.
2. Incorrect practice methods. Many teachers and students don't really know how it should be practiced. They just muddle along. Among other things, that means daily practice not just getting together with a teacher once a week. It also means breaking the daily practice session into 15 minute increments so the brain doesn't fatigue.
3. Unrealistic expectations is quite possibly the biggest one. People think they should be able to learn it in a few days or a couple of weeks. It takes the average person 30 hours to get to 5wpm. At an hour per day, that's one month. A more comfortable pace is 1/2 hour per day for two months. (It took me closer to 90 hours.)
4. Disapppointment created by the above issues causing a person to believe they can't do it thus creating a self-fulfilling prophecy.
5. Not wanting to do it so they end up fighting themselves subconsciously.
6. Negative reinforcement by those who tell them that code testing should be eliminated because it is "useless". Anyone who's seen HF trashed by static or aurora should know better.

It was part of a rebuttal to someone who said that requiring 5wpm code was Typing and reading are visually based. So it makes sense that those are a problem. But do you have difficulty saying words or hearing them? Just because the typing is a problem, doesn't mean that the aural/spoken is a problem. Reading/writing is a different activity than hearing/speaking and uses different parts of the brain. While I can't imagine a graphical method working for a dyslexic since it's visual, who can say for sure.

By the way, I still have problems with longer characters now and then or combinations of certain characters. I had an awful time trying to copy a call sign in a contest that began with SH5 (3 dots, 4 dots, 5 dots).

Recently I can across a "music" track that is about 5 minutes long that teaches Morse by the sound of the characters.

If you would find this helpful I may be able to get a copy of it and place it on an ftp server for you.

Outsourcing started way back in the 70's. It has only been in the last decade that anyone in the media and public paid any attention to it.
When layoffs became common place after the dotcom bust then the public finally realized that the barn door was open and nearly half the cows are gone. A bit to late.

5612. FIGHT THE SPEW! xnews / slrn score file update

The xnews score file which was posted previously has been updated to block some additional IP addresses belonging to known garbage posters. Google has not been blocked (yet), because the score file is now killing 99% of the spew in the rec.radio.amateur hierarchy.

Xnews is a free news reader which does not have to be installed. Simply extract it from the zip file and start running xnews.exe. You can obtain xnews from

http://www.download.com/3000-2164-10144167.html

and you can copy the score file below into score.ini to have an immediately effective filtering system.

An xnews / slrn score file allows you to specify filtering rules for each news group or for a collection of groups. You do that by enclosing the name of the group(s) in square brackets.

After the bracketed name of the groups, you specify a score. I don't bother with elaborate scoring, and instead give all matches a score of -9999. That causes the matching posts to be killed.

So, for all of the rec.radio.amateur hierarchy, plus the flame_fest news group, you can use the following score file (lines starting with "%" are comments). Text case is ignored by default, so "get help" matches "GeT HElp" when specified below. If you don't want to use a rule, simply insert a "%" character as the first character of a rule, or else delete the rule completely.

I'm Still Spamming

(Elton John/Bernnie Taupin/Mark C. Morgan, kb9rqz)
[From the album "Markie's I.Q. is Too Low For Zero"]

You could never know what it's like
When you marry a jewish/polish transexual bulldyke
And if there's a cold lonely light that shines from you You'll wind up like the wreck I hide behind those sockpuppets I use in
newsgroups

And did you think this fool could never win
Well look at me, I'm spamming again and again
I got a taste of love in a simple way
And if you need to know why I'm still spamming Wismen just post away

Don't you know I'm still spamming better than I ever did Deluding myself that I look like a true survivor, whining like a little

kid
I'm still spamming after all this time
Picking up the pieces of my life with Wismen on my mind

I'm still spamming yeah yeah yeah
I'm still spamming yeah yeah yeah

Once I never could hope to win
You post down the road leaving me to spam again
The threats you made were meant to cut me down
And if the newsgroups were just a circus I'd be a clown by now

Don't you know I'm still spamming better than I ever did Deluding myself that I look like a true survivor, whining like a little

kid
I'm still spamming after all this time
Picking up the pieces of my life with Wismen on my mind

I'm still spamming yeah yeah yeah
I'm still spamming yeah yeah yeah

"hungry" and "homeless" people are there by their own choice or by choices they have made in their past. The welfare system doesn't work, otherwise there wouldn't be 5 1/2 MILLION people dependant on it.

Yes..... I have a problem with the system when 28% of my net profits get paid to the feds to support lazy dead beats, and another 4% goes to the state for the same.

I am retired Military, I served my country for 22 years, My father was born in this country by the grace of god, and couldn't speek the language until he was in grade school. When I retired from the miltary, I started my company and have worked my ass off for 10 years to get to where I am now, finally starting to make a comfortable living.

There are too many jobs out there for folks to be unemployed, homeless, or hungry. Those that are unemployable are those who by their own choice, can't seem to show up to work, let alone on time...those who can't seem to show up for work sober and not hung over, and those who can't seem to be able to pass a drug screening. If I could find somebody that COULD meet those minimum standards and had a little common sense and a desire to learn, I would hire them in a heartbeat, and they will earn good money.

They have made their choices.... I for one am damned tired of having to foot the bill for their irresponsibility, lazyness, and feigned ignorance(you can't be ignorant and be able to sponge off the system)

not clear who you are addresing

but this method get tried on most dyslexics and rarely works

why> gald I asked becuase most dyslexcs ebd up doing the easier for us task on meoris 5 minutes of letter (learn though correcting our efforts at the end) rather managing to sort of the tone

In Dyslexia, ones is up against one own brain and the methods one has learned to work around the misfiring nurons most dyslexic learn very effectve methods of dealing with, and the btter the devolped method is the harder it is to defeat. Code testing tries to channel one down a path of limited choices

(Reagan's Welfare Queen was a myth, you know.)

When a company moves offshore they do not reduce prices to the end users. They increase their profits. Most big companies don't even pay income taxes because they are legally running out of a drawer in some Carribean island.

Eventually the middle class will be gone due to outsourcing. That will be the end of the USA.

5704. Are you interested in Ham Radio? Don't be fooled by the Lizards! Here's the FAQ!

Newsgroup: rec.radio.amateur.policy
Date: 2006-06-23 17:12:12 UTC
From: Confused <radio.ham@lycos.co.uk>

A necessary preface.....

(It is becoming increasingly difficult to fly the flag for decency and for civilised behaviour in Radio Hammery. Even the Usenet newsgroups dedicated to the cause have degenerated into a hotbed of abusive onslaughts by those who ought to know better; the Nugatory Numpties who boast of an interest exceeding 10, 20, 30, 40 or even 50 years and yet who have proved themselves incapable of even meeting the trivial exam standards set for 6-year-olds. However, there still exists the fundamental basis on which Ham Radio is based, and that will never die. This FAQ ("What Is Ham Radio?") will be regularly published and will not be shouted or bullied down. It is important that those of a technical bent, who are the natural seed-corn of Radio Hammery and who gravitate towards us to be the real novitiate, can still find us, (and know that we are still here), their fellows.)

-----ooooo-----

So,.....What is Ham Radio?

Ham Radio is a technical pursuit for those who are interested in the science of radio wave propagation and who are also interested in the way that their radios function. It has a long-standing tradition of providing a source of engineers who are born naturals.

Ham Radio awakens in its aficionados a whole-life fascination with all things technical and gives an all-abiding curiosity to improve one's scientific knowledge. It's a great swimming pool, please dive in!

This excitement causes a wish to share the experience with ones fellow man, and shows itself in the gentlemanly traditions of Ham Radio.

Radio Hams are in a unique privileged position in that they can construct and operate their own equipment! No-one else has this privilege. Users, such as broadcasters, the po lice and armed farces, CBers and mobile phone users have to purchase ready-made gear. Manufacturers are not licensed to operate their gear. Radio Hams are qualified to design, build and then operate their own pieces of equipment. They do this with gusto, and also repair and modify their own equipment. This is a privilege well worth the effort to gain, and one to be jealously guarded.

The excitement that drives a Radio Ham starts with relatively simple technologies at first, perhaps making his own Wimshurst machine and primary cells. Small pieces of test equipment follow, possibly multimeters and signal generators. Then comes receivers and transmitters. It is with the latter that communication with like-minded technically motivated people takes off. The scope for technical development grows with the years and now encompasses DSP and DDS. There is also a great deal of excitement in the areas of computer programming to be learnt and applied.

The technical excitement motivates Radio Hams to compete with each other to determine who has designed and manufactured the best-quality station. This competitiveness is found in DXing, competitions and fox-hunts.

-----OOOOO----

However, beware! A Ham Radio licence is such a desirable thing to have that there are large numbers of people who wish to be thought of as Radio Hams when, in fact, they are nothing of the kind! Usually such people are a variation of the CB Radio hobbyist; they buy their radios off the shelf and send them back to be repaired; they are not interested in technical discussion and sneer at those who are; they have no idea how their radios work inside and have no wish to find out;
they are free with rather silly personal insults.

These CB types engage in the competitive activities with their Cheque-Book-purchased off-the-shelf radios in a forlorn effort to prove that they are Radio Hams.

No _REAL_ Radio Hams are deceived by such people!

-----ooooo-----

One infallible way to disambiguate the CB Radio Hobbyist from the _REAL_ Radio Ham is to solicit their view of the difference between CB Radio and Ham Radio. A Radio Ham will perceive Ham Radio to be a technical pursuit and will perceive CB Radio to be a social communications facility no different in essence to a land-line telephone or a GSM mobile in the hands of a 6-year-old. Thus a Radio Ham could also hold a CB licence safe in the knowledge that such a licence says no more about him than having a land-line telephone, whilst continuing to regard Ham Radio as a separate technical pursuit.

A CB Radio hobbyist, on the other hand, sees no difference between a Ham Radio licence and a CB Radio licence. To him, they are sisters-under-the-skin. Wrongly, the CB Radio Hobbyist then tries to classify himself as the equal of the Radio Ham when, in fact, he is nothing of the kind.

Ham Radio is not CB Radio and has no common ground with it! Ham Radio is _THE_ technical pursuit for gentlemen; CB Radio is the operating hobby for those who buy their rigs and equipment off the shelf.

-----ooooo-----

If you are the sort of person who is motivated by a technical interest in how things work; if you took apart malfunctioning clocks, toasters and the like and put them right despite never having seen them working, then a Ham Radio licence is your traditional route! There has never been a shortage of such people, and those who gravitate towards such an interest have always been welcomed into our shacks and their interests fostered. There is not today, nor has there ever been, a need to go out and encourage and press children, children who have never expressed an interest in Ham Radio, to come into our shacks. Such an activity should cause eyebrows to be raised - what normal well-adjusted adults seek the social acquaintance of children?!

-----ooooo-----

Please remember that this FAQ is a _POSITIVE EXHORTATION_ to you to exert yourselves to join our fraternity! (If you find otherwise, then perhaps you are already classing yourself in the mediocre groups of those who are criticised in the FAQ and from whom we _MUST_ dissociate? Hey 352,

So far so good with mine. They are cheaper than a lot of radios,but hopefully it will keep on working. I went from a Galaxy Pluto to the 200. I like the extra power but could have done without the lighted background.

you are probably correct. linguistics is mainly concerned with spoken language, not written. in some languages like English, you'll note that people kind of speak the words out in their brain. other languages like Mandarin seem to be converted directly from characters into ideas.

ok, what burns me up is people claiming they can't learn code. there are languages that are tonal, configurational, have bizarre sounds, that put the object before the subject, that have thousands of characters. 99% of the planet learns their native language!

code is NOT that different than a language. if you must, you can interpret it as tones, and simply write out the tones on a piece of paper and decode them.

same here!

i have trouble with high speed B, 6, 1, J. however, you can create a practice regimen that focuses on these.

a trick for contests might be using a spectrograph or MFJ viewer. good luck.

good practice is beacons e.g. 10 meters. they are terse text, contain slashes, and 5s since i hear Texas ones.

you sort of have to "decode" what the beacon is talking about.

i hate to play devil's advocate, but i can read CW with spectral analysis software. several of us on the very low bands are doing that.

yes, the chances of some deaf guy "hearing" an SOS is pretty slim.

it's sad that people get alienated from hobbies. it's also a fact of life. i downloaded some composition software, and it turned out i SUCK at making digital music.

i can play the second movement of Moonlight Sonata, but that's about it.

i remember this girl in chemistry class. she studied 5 hours for a test. i studied 10 minutes. my score was 30 points higher than hers. i wasn't necessarily smarter than her, i just knew how to study, and same thing with CW.

i learned Morse Code at age 15. i got up to 25 WPM, perfect copy. i made QSOs, did a few contests, and quit for 9 years.

i now copy at 18 WPM, which makes me think i learned it like it was a language.

some suggestions. use Farnsworth, copying characters at 18 WPM is less annoying.

make QSOs! would you learn a language by using audio CDs, or would you talk to native speakers?

find out what the format of the test QSO is!

i didn't study much for my novice code test. i had no decent tapes, and i had to borrow my dad's computer to use software. computers back then were $2000 and no kid had one.

so anyway, i use Supermorse as recommended by my club. i get to the test, realize my code sucks, and luck out because they do a Supermorse QSO.

it's easy in today's world: free practice MP3s and $50 computers.

if you are contesting or DXing, CW rules.

HF phone contests will drive you insane, esp if you want to win an award.
even 10 meter phone was wall to wall stations from 28.300 to 29.000. i had phased Yagis, and had to go way high, or end up stomping on someone.

if you want to run DX, good luck with 100 watts on SSB.

That may be what someone told you, but it was not the reason. The reason was that it was part of an overall "radio education" and it was one of the fundamentals of radio even in the 1950s.

That's absolute bullshit. I build and modify my own CB equipment. I know of hams that don't even know ohms law much less how to build equipment. I see lots of off the shelf ham gear for sale proving that your post is nothing more that propaganda. You perpetuate the myth that CBers are too stupid to obtain a license, you are wrong.
You post this to continue the rift between hams and CBers, fine by me, many CBers become hams, others like myself avoid it due to closed minded thinking like yours. Maybe if hams openly welcomed CBers into the fold instead of constantly insulting us, the ham radio hobby will survive. Instead the CBers will sit back and laugh as the FCC sells off your bandwidth to the highest bidder. We DO have a common ground, you just refuse to see it.

Back when I was young and interested I lost my desire to learn code when I started monitoring the ham bands. It all seemed too formal, and then like it is now, you have a large segment that think you are trash if you don't have the highest obtainable license. Even this thread proves it. You have a large contingent hell bent on having CW testing with any class, even though I never plan to use CW. I could get my Tech ticket, but then all I'm going to hear is that I'm a no-code tech. I rather be a CBer as we have no cast system.

Well, considering the original poster posted with a .co.uk e-mail address (where he lives as he constantly pollutes the uk.r.a group), I would like to see the FCC trying to sell off the spectrum in the UK!!!!!

sad to say, but i dont think your burbling is accomplishing what youd like it to.

maybe if you post eight or nine times instead of just three times in a row, maybe then ill be intimidated, following your every suggestion.

that or ill just laugh at you some more. one or the other im sure.

Well considering that the U.K.is the U.S.A.'s lap dog, when the spectrum is sold here it will also be sold there.

Besides, it will be a great day when the code is dropped......the rush of

You're a tough guy.

During a more civilised time a company went into business to provide jobs and make profits and to be part of a community. Nowadays corporations are extranational, have no local ties and just milk markets dry and move on.

Corporations pay way less than half th cost of running governments, even though they are the major beneficieries of what governments provide. This is because we let them write their own rules.

Most hams welcome CBers and it is only a few which don't. As a show of good will, I am inviting all CBers who have 2M gear or who have signed up for echolink to go ahead and use my repeater at 146.835 MHz or to use the K9GO-L link with echolink. Don't worry about a call, or else use the designated guest call of W4NTI to get on. No real ham would use that call and that's why we use it for guest ops.

Enjoy.

First not every homeless and hungry person is there by their own choice. There are those that the system chrushes and grinds into pieces just for beign at the wrong place at the wrong time. The welfare system does work. Yes decision and actions in all our past make differences. Yes some want to live the way they do. Somewhat out on the fringe of society.

What you pay is part of doing business. I bet you pass most if not all off when and where ever you can.

Corporations do pay taxes. The expense of taxes is often passed on where feasable. Often these are in higher selling prices. Often taxes do intrude on profits. When they do, there are steps taken to regain that profit. Outsourcing is a means of regaining profit. Cutting benefits and maintaining salaries is another. There are other means also.

possibly it is certainly more valueble the the mereknowledge of Morse code is without the level of engineering skill I have

BTW I note myone of my double majors was Physics and a phisists can general anything the various engineers can we just take a lot longer to do it (and make more mistakes than tsomeone trains to think inside the

I don't know much about spark. Was the length of the spark

You are right! Corporations don't pay the cost of running governments.
They pay the cost of usurping governments!

click short pause clack = dit
click long pause clack = dah

i think it would be hard to decode vs listening to a modern receiver.

i believe spark gap would be useless in a rescue situation.

I don't think your going to see that big of a rush. What attracts a lot of people to CB is price. I don't want to spend a ton of money on ham gear and I don't have the time to build it. I think all that will happen is that the lower portion of 10 meters will get the traffic with all of the "export" radios in circulation.

I have problems with most characters of four or more elements length.
Exceptions are <period> and <Q>, for some reason. As I have said here, after hearing dit-dah-dah-dit identified, whatever it is, I cannot subsequently hear it and know what it is. I think my own first name initial, <J> is some combination of three-and-one or one-and-three, but I can't remember it. Oh yeah -- I know <V> because the dit-dit-dit-dah sounds like the 1812 overture.

I dial a telephone with two fingers -- one pushing the buttons and one holding my place in the phone book, since I have to go back and look at the number repeatedly. Yes, I do memorize phone numbers, but I may invert the digits when I try to dial them. This is a royal pain in the ass.

When I joined the Navy in 1962, one of our tests was for clerical skill, which involved inspecting columns of numbers and calling the entries on each line either ALIKE or DIFFERENT. I scored a 35, lower than anybody I ever met. I wanted to be a Yeoman (clerical duties). Instead, they sent me to ET school and I've never looked back.

I'll read any responses, but I think I'm pretty well talked out on this one.

I've been using RG-8 for most of my comms. Not a problem so far. I notice that my transmit is much faster than my receive in that I can talk to stations several minutes before they answer me.

Since my RG-8 runs uphill, I am assuming that my outgoing power takes a bit longer to get to the antenna. Meanwhile, the incoming signal comes down the antenna wire and blocks out some of my outgoing signal. Since the incoming signal is running down hill it is faster than the uphill signal.

Is there some way I can get around this? Can I change the angle of the uphill wire to slow down my transmissions? Can I make my downhill wire longer so it will slow down the incoming transmissions? Or should I make the uphill transmission wire longer and talk slower?

You need to switch to mini 8 coax to create a restriction. Smaller wire means slower transmission. If that doesn't get you close enough, buy an incoming signal resistor. You will have to calculate the impedance for the desired frequency using this formula: 0u812.Ic divided by xtc% to the 666th power, multiply by your callsign and subtract the round root of the number of cw wpm that you can copy and that will get you the value of the incoming signal resistor. Or you can just use 2 coat hangers with tin foil on the back to make it directional. Add more hangers and you can make 20 or 30 element beams.

You'll get no argument from me. The US tends to do as they please regardless of what the rest of the world thinks.
I remember a time when most countries liked the US and it's citizens, but I wouldn't go that far, but the FCC all but quit policing 11 meters back in the late 70s. A couple of years ago the FCC gave local law enforcement the power to enforce the laws governing 11 meters, but most of the police in my area have no interest or knowledge to do anything about it. I have a better chance of getting in trouble spitting on the sidewalk, and I don't have a sidewalk as I live in the sticks.

Did I mention that I , Roger Wiseman, use a forged email address over Mark Morgan's name to spam you guys?
Damned if I didn't forget to wipe my Earthlink headers from the spams, so forgive me please.

I also humbly ask Mark Morgan to not contact my Earthlink account to post a complaint. I, Roger Wiseman, will assure Mark and Lloyd Davies that I will never again post comments over their names or IP addresses.
I apologize for the less than legal activities I fomented and I wish to assure Mark and Lloyd that will transgress no more. I want to make ammends. I want to make friends.

I am offering an olive branch of friendship and peace. Life is lonely in Glendale and I could use some friends.

Thank you for your pathetic consideration.

Roger Leo Wussman

How would you describe your welfare stipend?
Will you move on when it runs dry?

The state of Michigan tells Roger Wiseman's imaginary friend "aboiut"
Mark? How does that work, UnWiseman?

Dave K8MN

It is fairly simple, Dave. Roger hears voices, though where these voices originate from is open to conjecture. He doesn't answer his door, doesn't answer his phone, but he hears voices.
Perhaps his imaginary friend called Michigan and got an imaginary response.
Most likely, though, he was simply responding to those "voices" that torture his poor, lonely soul.

Heck, Lloydie/Markie/Billy/George/Roger's imaginary friend, you snip quite often and you even change the words of others. You have a celtic cross on your front door (decoration?) and you spew filth on newsgroups.

Be all that you can be.

He has you responding to his every post. Which one of you is stupid?
Which one of you is defeated? Which one of you meets the clinical definition of sociopath?

Dave K8MN

Mark has not been defeated. In fact, he continues to run Roger's imaginary friend ragged. Roger and Mark could be Siamese twins in that both HAVE to get the last word in, however inane it may be.
It is my learned opinion that both Mark and Roger are social pariahs with learning disabilities.
Oh, wait. Let me rephrase that. It is Roger's imaginary friend who suffers from sociopathic issues, not Roger.

You guys can stop picking on me any day now. I need a respite from your attacks. I am tired of hiding behind my curtains, tired of not being able to answer my phone, tired of stalkers knocking on my front door and tired of looking over my shoulder every time I go out to get my mail.
It is your fault, Geno, that I am afraid to even go to the grocery store and your fault Arf! Arf! that I am afraid of losing yet another account.
I don't know who sent me all those pizzas two months ago, but I am going to blame Lloyd Davies for it. I blame Lloyd for everything anyway and I am tired of Lloyd hanging around my neighborhood and listening in on my telephone conversations. Did you guys know that Lloyd hides in my neighbor's garage and listens to my thoughts? I know he does, because I've seen Lloyd peeking through the gable vent when I go outside. Just last week I went to the neighbor and told him Lloyd was hiding in his garage and the neighbor let me look inside. Of course by that time Lloyd had run off, but I know he was there because I saw his eye peering at me. The neighbor has since locked his garage, but now Lloyd hides in the tree two doors down and stares and stares at me for hours on end. I keep my curtains pulled tight, but Lloyd is always there, listening and stalking. I have to whisper into my phone because I know Lloyd puts his ear next to the telephone junction box and listens in.
Just last week I went to the 7-Eleven store for a Slurpee (I like the guy who works there because we give each other purple Slurpees under the counter) and there was Lloyd, hiding behind the magazine rack. He held a Superman comic book up in front of his face, but I KNOW it was Lloyd.
Why don't I call the police, you ask? Well, the Glendale cops don't like me, for starters. Lloyd and Geno have sent so many false complaints to the cops that they think I am the one at fault. Geno even sent a letter to the Chief, Norm Stenger, that said I accused Chief Stenger of being crooked. Geno even faked a letter that said I called the Chief a fat cocksucker.
And for the rest of you lispers, I don't take medications for my mental disabilities. The voices I hear are the real thing. If you want proof I'll record them for you so you can hear them for yourselves. You wait, the voices I will record all come from one person. Lloyd Davies.
Tomorrow I will go to the local Sears store and buy a microphone for my computer. I'll hook it up, put it next to my ear and record the voices for all of you to hear. That will prove to you that Lloyd is behind all of this. Maybe then you guys will learn that I, Roger Wiseman, am not deranged. Those voices are real, and I intend to prove it once and for all.
Wait! Did you hear that? I did. I KNEW it! Lloyd is prowling around under my windows even now. He has his shoes off so I won't hear him walking on my grass, but I know he is out there. I can hear him breathing. He listens to my keyboard and knows what I am typing, so I better make some typo errors just to throw him off.

And the voices are back again. I hate those voices. I'll be back later, but for now I am going to go hide in the bedroom and beat my head against the wall until the voices stop.
I sure could use a Thorazine tab about now.

Hi,

My name is Lloyd Austin Davies. I have been dick sucking for 31 years.
I have given blow jobs to blacks, whites, hispanics, orientals. I give blow jobs regardless if you are gay, straight or bi.
I learned to give blowjobs when my daddy Ray stuck my lips on his hard cock. I even have my own usenet message board, alt.cocksucker.lardass.lloyd-davies. My preference is for boys under the age of 12 although I'll fuck any child. I am HIV-positive so I service the aids crowd. I don't charge. If you like to use my services, please give me a call right away

at a minimum, he would know quantum mechanics, statistical mechanics, special relativity, electromagnetics. if he was theoretical, he studied quantum field theory and general relativity.

What is the percentage of amateur radio operators on the public dole? It is easy to spot them, because they sit on their fat butts yammering on repeaters all day, and they are in every radio contest and always claiming they have worked more dx stations than anyone else.

The 'newer' vesion of the Cobra 200 has Toshiba finals in it. Apparently it was the 'older' ones that were having problems with smoked finals and drivers. The new version also has a limiter in it, so max output on SSB is now about 125 watts or so

[quoted text skipped]

They are a bunch of pathetic creeps that are all over the rec.radio groups. Several are from the old Deja groups and post on other flame type boards.

I'll never post anything on these groups using my name or normal e-mail address again.

Harold..........maybe I am, maybe I'm not.
--(end quote two)--

Notice that "Harold" above is in the same Long Beach, MS net block, and that "Harold" says he'll never use his real name (Les Locklear) or address again. Someone had been impersonating Les, and "Harold" immediately showed up to say he wouldn't post as himself again.

There are other problems with "Harold's" denial: "Harold" and Les have the same identical news reader, right down to the minor version numbers (and by the way, that version of Firefox has a security hole in it, Les).

BOTTOM LINE:

Same news reader, same net block for both "Harold" and Locklear, coupled with the fact that Google's records show that "Harold" never appeared on the net before May 23rd.

If it walks like a duck, has feathers like a duck and quacks like a duck, why then it must be Les Locklear!

My detective kit seems to be in perfect working order, Les.

Just remember, Les: A TimeLORD always wins in the end. ALWAYS!

Thinking about yesterday and how my life used to be Now I'm locked up this place
I'm a schizophrenic case
All the faces I now see never show a sight of glee
Every night we start to hustle
It's time to do the thorazine shuffle
It's the thorazine shuffle

Everyday half past four
They push my food through the door
Every night right at eight
They put me back into my straight
All the paintings I have made they look kind of strange
Every night we start to hustle
It's time to do the thorazine shuffle

Of all the techie things I could relate to, here's something I never thought would come up: I WAS a janitor at NSA. I was stationed there 1970-1972 as a Sailor and during my last 8 months, I worked as a janitor after hours to make enough money for the down payment on my first house. All the janitors needed to be cleared, which made us military folks shoo-ins for these jobs.

The pay was OK for your average part time job. Nothing special, but I was happy for the $1800 I banked in less than a year. (5% of 33,000 used to get a family into a house. Not today.)

My first wife still has that house and it's worth $700,000.

Try offering two outfielders and a pitcher to be named later :-)

Seriously, other than her half of the house (her current hubby got on the deed a few years ago for a re-fi), almost nothing. I divorced her in 1981 and traded away my half of the equity for no claim by her on my future earnings (meaning no spousal support and no splitting of my Navy retirement). She took a second to buy a business, which supported her, although she did not run it well and she took a loss when she sold it.

I doubt she ever saved a penny. She draws a Social Security disability pension for several ailments, real or imagined.

I fared better ;-)

I wish that all you hambones would head on over to 14.275 USB on 20M. That freq has of late become the "new 14.313". Even the guy from Ga stops in their from time to time to stir the shi+ up a bit.

Remember the freq: 14.275 mHz USB

It's almost like a LIVE version of the R.R.A.P. cesspoole (...really !)

This ain't Lloyd. It's someone who missess the "good ole days" before R.H. came along and busted up all the radio-fun that was occuring
on a daily basis on 20M and 40M.
I mean remember the fun times we all had listening to The Mike and Judy Show, Raincoat Charlie, the jewish midget from Texas, his utterly insane neighbor
in Nochadoches (sp?), the Kind Jewish Injun, Sponge Boy Bucket Mouth, The many incantations of the famous Dancing Chickenman and of course our all time favorite....The Red Panty Man ! ("..I got my high heel shoes, got my red panties on, I'm goin to a bar..etc")
All of you guys in here have the capacity to LIVEN UP 14.275 mHz to an extent where it could become the MOST POPULAR freq in ham radio just like 14.313 was Years ago.
I am also sure that the current bunch of sour grapes in there would welcome you all, esp that kook in Canada who's been sniffing too much oil sands up in Alberta.........

Since I don't do CW too much anymore, I have similar problems, and I've been at it since 1961!
If I did it more, I'd probably get better and I'm not suggesting that you

Gay pride parades held across nation By ADAM GOLDMAN, Associated Press Writer
Mon Jun 26, 6:03 AM ET

NEW YORK - Drag queens in knee-high boots, kids with two dads and New York City's first openly gay city council speaker were among hundreds of thousands attending gay pride parades across the nation, weeks after a vicious attack on a popular gay singer and the 25th anniversary of the start of the AIDS epidemic.

Tens of thousands of spectators lined Fifth Avenue on Sunday for the city's annual parade, withstanding intermittent rain and turning the route into a sea of rainbows with colorful floats and lavish costumes.

"Everyone else has a chance to express their affection freely, and for one day in New York, you can be free and not feel ashamed or embarrassed," said 42-year-old Roberto Hermosilla, from Miami, attending his ninth gay pride parade.

On San Francisco's Market street, thousands of festively dressed people looked on as marching bands, dancers and floats bearing corporate logos streamed by. On one float, a bearded man wearing a white lace miniskirt and fishnet stockings sang Madonna's "Like a Virgin." A half-dozen men dressed in underwear and top hats danced behind him.

The parades also had a political message, with parade-goers bearing slogans about gay marriage, AIDS, and discrimination.

"It's to have a good time, but also to remember the issues out there," said Jane Woodman, 26, in San Francisco. "There's still a lot of work to be done," she said, noting the national debate raging over whether gays should have a legal right to marry.

The New York parade marked the very public and triumphant return of singer Kevin Aviance, who rolled down Fifth Avenue atop a fake pachyderm and a circus-themed float just weeks after the drag queen was viciously beaten and suffered a broken jaw. Police have charged four young men with assaulting the artist while yelling anti-gay slurs.

The theme of New York's Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual and Transgender Pride March was "The Fight for Love and Life," but there was plenty of talk about hate following the Aviance attack. The New York Police Department said reports of anti-gay bias crimes totaled 25 through mid-June - compared with 19 over the same period in 2005.

"A few hateful homophobes will not set us back," said City Council Speaker Christine Quinn, who marched in the parade. In January, Quinn became the first woman and first openly gay person to lead the council.

Organizations that marched in San Francisco included Rocket Dog Rescue, a volunteer group that helps abandoned dogs find homes. One marcher with the group walked with a pit bull that was dressed in a rainbow tutu.

In Ohio on Saturday, thousands gathered for the 25th Stonewall Columbus parade. Michael Eblin, marching in his first parade, followed a black Hummer pulling a float of men.

"For the first time, I'm going to be part of a majority," the 18-year-old Eblin said just before the parade began.

Along the route, protesters held large signs reading, "Homo sex is sin" and "God abhors you," while a boy in blue tie-dye held up another: "2 Moms. 2 Dads. Too Cool."

The parades commemorate the Stonewall uprising of 1969, when gay bar patrons resisted a police raid.

Associated Press writer Dan Goodin in San Francisco contributed to this report.

Since you hate radio. Wouldn't it be simpler for you to just pull your head out of your ass and not click on any radio groups?

Happy to Help. :-)

At some point, I'm sure I'll need to switch to 'Hey Stupid' when the CW exam is gone. I could start using it whenever I follow-up to your incoherent babbling too.

I tell them no, just a few tards that went bad after the FCC restructured ham radio.

They agree now that dumbing down ham radio and getting rid of CW would be a bad idea.

You CB tards go where you're NOT WANTED: the lower end of the 10 meter ham band.

Get your retarded CB ass's off 10 meters this instant. We don't want to hear your farting and belching communications. Keep it on 27.185 where it belongs, then maybe we'll think about leaving RRCB. Ten-Four?

Hm-m-m. I can hear that in my head. ... thought it was the 1812 Overture.

BT

Playing the selection is mighty convincing: Ol' Ludwig pops off some V's right at the start. I do not seem to have the 1812 Overture handy, so here I tread ever-so-lightly ... not being much for knowing good music. I can run bits of 1812 through my head, too, but not much. (I just get started and run out of headroom.) I shall seek it out. TKS & 73

MORE: I just played the 1812 Overture and didn't hear any V's. Heard quite a few T's and E's ... but no V's.

Thanks.

This message was not posted by Mr. Davies. No way Hosay.

Speaking of Mr. Davies - we wonder where he is lately.

He hasn't been here in years.

Maybe he can stop by and give us an update on how his TinyTenna is working.

KK4TL said that.

it is a 12(?) minute piece, and i ran a few minutes through my head. there is a short part that goes dit dit dit dah.

if you get the real cannon / bass drum recording, it is incredible.

I know what you mean about Elmering. Many of the new hams had to Elmer the old CW only hams who had no idea how to operate a computer or even use all the great new digital modes. Some of the dinos had trouble trying to figure out the solid state rigs. They kept looking around for things to tune like it was some boat anchor tube rig - LOL!!!

It's amazing how the dinos can operate a key, but they can't get the hang of a mouse. We eventually had to give up. Can't teach the old dogs new tricks so the younger and newer hams used the digital modes and the old dinos stuck to their CW.

Although the CW types were amazed how PSK31 could be copied even when you could not hear the other station. They admitted that you can't copy CW if you cannot hear it.

I think we made a lot of progress on FD. Finally the dinos admitted that there are modes that are better and more capable than CW.

One old guy even said we should give up on the CW testing and test new hams how to use a computer and the new digital modes and that was more relevant for today's ham radio.

Actully, POWs made use of "tap code" to communicate. Check

Same is true of some musicians. The older ones just don't get computers, but they sure can wail up a Force 5 hurricane on those old analog axes.

Teach kids to cut-and-paste lip-sync trash with a mouse before we teach them about JL Hooker? Nah, that's not for me.
I'll hang with the old bands.

I've been looking for a flat black colored person but have been unable to find any. I also have not found anyone who is white as a sheet of white paper. Alas, all I have found are people who vary in shades of brown earthtones. By looking at a spectrometer display, it is actually hard to tell one from another.

So lets get this straight. The above poster is a "sicko" for doing nothing more than posting statements YOU have made at various times.

YOU claim you are not sick even though you admit to putting dicks in your mouth and ass and who knows where. Yes indeed Markie, you are sick and twisted. YOU are part of the reason our society has declined.

you "sign your name" because you have no choice. you've outed your self because of your silly spamming of hams and cb'ers. now you've began fucking with the shortwave groups. you're getting your due,faggot.

Boy oh boy have you got your work cut out for yourselves there !!!!
Hams have got to be the WORST when it comes to clothing with the only possible exception of the people who go to model railroad and train shows. I've even been to a few NASCAR meets and the folks there (as redneck as they are) are 500% better dressed than the hams at hamfests were.

Any really experienced ham knows that each and every mode has conditions under which it is "the best". Ever try to work PSK when the auroras are running wild? Digital won't get through but CW will and occasionally even voice will get through even though all the digital modes fail.

You must have a very weird club.

I'd like to use Echolink for an evening of good, clean fun. If any of you would like to contact me, please let me know.
I would like to sit back ,relax, have a drink or two, and chat about the latest shows at the Lavender Lad lounges in Wheeling. (some of the crossdressers are very pretty)
I don't get out often, mostly because I don't have a car and partly because I have little money.
I live in an upscale area of Glendale, West Virginia and am a single, 50 yr. old white male who owns his own home.(actually..I inherited it)
My interests revolve around cross dressing, stalking Lloyd Davies, cross dressing, and designing violet outfits with frilly lace that compliments my pockmarked cheeks.
I have a secondary interest in Amateur Radio, but do not often use it save for jamming someone from time to time.
I can be found at home most nights, though I will never answer the door and will hardly ever answer my telephone. You can call me at 304-845-0109 and leave a message. If you sound sexy enough, I may just pick up the phone and let you whisper in my ear.

While I have a cell number, I give it out to only the most intimate of friends. Meanwhile, if you want to go for a spin around the Ferry (Fairy) Wheel, drop me a line and I will get back to you. I'll give you a spin you won't forget.

Woger Wussman

(and no Lloyd impersonators are allowed!)

I have teranews in my kill file, so I didn't even see his post until you reposted the whole thing to rrap. Sigh. You forced me to switch to a new newsreader which can check the references header so that I can kill followups to teranews posts, and I should probably thank you for that. I've been putting the change off for way too long.

It's best to killfile dorks like that and not give him the response he's so desperate to get. By focusing attention on him, you're playing right into his hands.

If you're really interested in giving him unwanted attention, give abuse@teranews.com a try. I understand that they DO respond to complaints, unlike the tards at Google.

well, I don't have a newsreader with a lot of features here (and I don't run windows, so those newsreaders are out).

I do know people on the development team for knode (this newsreader) and I can point some suggestions their way (perhaps as plugins? who knows?).

I've reported there until I am blue in the face. it would be more apprpriate
if they would just forward me his IP info so I can go after his ISP instead (much more effective).

it would be if he were using an isp most of his filth is posted form various publice access internet points like libaries and the like indeed I suspect it is the only reason this paranoid still goes out at

I believe (no proof that Fcc is willing to indulge the ARRL as long their is no price for them what i think will get tomove is thatNVEC will need to know stuff before long for the new General pool

Just call a foreign country on your cell phone. If you ask them to 'Please QSL', you might have to tell whoever it is you talk to what that means.

If they won't QSL, we can use your phone bill as proof of contact, but it's not as good as a real QSL card because how do we know that you didn't just babble into someone's answering machine for a minute or two.

The first DX award no-codes can try for and is easy and cheap to get is the CAC Award (Called all Continents) and is very similar to the WAC (Worked all Continents.) If you're really really new to radio, you might want to start with CAS first. (Called all States)

Yes, I can get the message there quicker in a bottle, than the time it takes an appliance operator to get their rig back from a repair shop.

I know you're right.

They where doing great until the computers crashed then the new hams looked at us old hams, blank stares on their faces wondering what to do. They thought Field day was over at the point. Then us dino's took over and showed them what ham radio really was. Some nickle extra's even said they were going practice building their code skills again. They saw you can work stations on code that you can't work on phone or PSK31. We taught them how to solder on PL-259s and tune portable antenna & trim wire antennas.

We laughed when they lifted up the tri-bander and then had to take it down again to connect up the coax. That was funny.

Why don't you sign who you are then? I don't understand why some people that post like to obfuscate. And I'm a regular, and I can't say I've ever seen your call. You certainly don't make it obvious, which is your

Okay, but we want to know just what it is you do beside disrupt the news groups. You and Wiseman ought to go to an unused news group (there are plenty) and continue your childish pissing contest there. May I suggest alt.photography.mark-morgan? It's essentially unused, and it already has your name on it. You could cross post to alt.asshole.roger-wiseman, and each of you tards could scream at the other from his own news group while simultaneously leaving the real amateur radio enthusiasts alone.

That's your style too. Don't it bug you when people restore the subject? In your madness, you think that you are "winning" something by constantly changing the subject header to "get help."

Most people are NOT reading Usenet on Google, so your "get help" ploy has no affect at all on them.

Get help, MarkieTard. Your delusions have taken over your life.

Your use of the word 'target' is interesting.

I'll follow that by quoting you,

> To begin with this is an antenna page, but we'll ignore that for now.

Then you said

> I don't like anonymous posters.

I don't like self-appointed net police but like anonymous posters I have to tolerate them. The Supreme Court has ruled that identifying oneself is not a requirement for freedom of speech, so being an anonymous poster is legal. 'Targeting' them is tantamount to stalking, which is not legal, Mr. Net Cop.

Thanks for posting those. I'd like to see that list posted periodically as new nyms are discovered.

The reason that the dork has so many nyms is so that he can exceed Google's daily posting limits by moving from one free account to another (he has said so himself). He abuses Google so that he can abuse our news groups. What a fine, upstanding guy. NOT.

Thanks for posting those. I'd like to see that list posted periodically as new nyms are discovered.

The reason that the dork has so many nyms is so that he can exceed Google's daily posting limits by moving from one free account to another (he has said so himself). He abuses Google so that he can abuse our news groups. What a fine, upstanding guy. NOT.

That's generally when you find out your rig might need repair, when someone reports your audio is distorted or garbled.

Do you remember when you last made a CW contact and Did you enjoy it?

-or-

You don't want to soil yourself by using CW. You would rather send potty mouth text messages on rrap and the main HF radio in your shack is a CB with an echo mic connected to it.

We're in deep shit when CW goes away if you people are what modernized hams looks like.

OK, you can go back to potty mouth flaming each other again. 73

Well... Perhaps but bad hams get the boot from the FCC, eventually anyway.

With the Red Light Rule in full force and the fine affirmed there is no doubt that K1MAN will be a highly prized vanity call in about 2 years. Unless he decides to pay up or cut a deal with his arch rivals at the FCC.

Interesting development... The removal of the fake court case about the Red Light Rule from his web site... Wonder if he knew it was fake when he posted it... Funny that it showed within 2 days of the first mention of this rule in this news group.. Then disappears almost as fast when it is shown to be false... Draw your own conclusions.

If good men always win, does that mean bad men always loose?

Let's be honest, the only thing you can repair is some old piece of junk tube rig because the technology is so simple. You could never repair a modern rig, because like most dinos, you have ever evolved into the new technology because out of fear, you cling to what is old and comfortable.

Wow, you guys must have been part of the most ignorant group of individuals ever put on this earth using the most crappy computers and equipment. All the computers crashed? Wow, how could that have happened?

I am surprised that the newbies are still using ham radio after hanging around with you dinos. Computers broke down and you could not help fix them. That's right, the computers don't run on tubes and that is the extent of your knowledge as dinos.

Now anyone that uses PSK knows that you can work a station that you cannot hear with the human ear. Anyone that knows CW knows that you have to hear CW in order to copy it. So as a dino, you are showing your ignorance of technology and probably have never heard, seen or used PSK or you would never have made that statement.

My Field Day group had a good laugh when I pointed out your message to them. They said you obviously don't know what you are talking about - at least concerning anything modern.

So you old, used up, worthless dinos laughed at the newbies, belittled them, and you could not fix or use anything modern. And you think those newbies are going to stick with ham radio? Probably not. Old thinking buggy whip hams like yourself need to stay locked in your shacks talking only with other dinos about your illnesses and the like, and stay away from the younger technology savy crowd as they might be really interested in ham radio and your old crap is going to scare them away.

They don't want to learn about buggy whips when they are interested in driving a modern car - get it old timer?

It's a simple, and fair, requirement in any debate that if it's your assertion to make, then it's your assertion to prove. Where's your proof?

If there really was such important breaking news in support of K1MAN, you would be shouting it from the rooftops, and with the exact web addresses from the FCC, the ARRL, or other definitive source containing this valuable information (k1man.com doesn't count).

The jaded readers of this newsgroup have seen many, many posters come traipsing through here over the years spouting all kinds of bizarre claims. Of course, with the caveat that the supporting evidence can't be revealed, or won't be believed, or is too hard to find, or even (as you are trying to assert in your case) is the responsibility of the skeptics to find. In 99.9% of these claims, we can confidently call "B.S." Either the claim is not true, or has been greatly exaggerated, and the evidence, or lack thereof, underscores this point.

Facts:

- There has been no FCC or court action since the upholding of K1MAN's $21,000 forfeiture in March of 2006:

http://www.fcc.gov/eb/Orders/2006/DA-06-663A1.html

(Search Google with "site:fcc.gov Glenn Baxter")

- The alleged case that overturns the FCC's Red Light Rule has turned out to be a fake. The quick removal of it from the K1MAN web site is a fairly clear, implicit acknowledgment of this fact.

In view of the FCC's recent mistakes with regard to BPL, and in view of the Supreme Court's decision that the FCC overstepped its authority when it allowd the broadcast flag, I and others have come to completely mistrust that government organization. We are now mobilizing to resist the FCC until Congress intervenes to correct the situation.

Toward that end, we have established the K1MAN Defense Fund and will soon be seeking donations. If you share my belief that the FCC is derelict in its duity, please help amateur radio by contributing to the fund. Just as soon as the ARRL completes the paperwork to establish itself as custodian of the K1MAN Defense Fund, further details will be posted both here and in the pages of QST.

The FCC must not be allowed to continue its abuse of the radio services at the behest of Washington lobbyists.

"More threats" implies alleged previous 'threats' were made by someone against something or someone. Such is not the case, never has been, never will be and is not now. Your reading skills are at a low level of comprehension, if you take what what was said as a 'threat.' What I did do, and you either purposely misstated or more likely did not comprehend, was to point out to the poster that this forum is a very dangerous place for him/her to be posting in from his/her employer's server and on company time. YOU are one of those entities which make this a dangerous place.
All one has to do is review your nonstop daily spew of posts to this and many other Usenet groups. Now run along and study your grade school comprehension.
Case in point.

Phony's can ignore. This question doesn't apply to no-codes.

Nickle Generals and Extras:

If the 13 and 20 wpm CW exams came back and you had to pass the proper code exam for your class to renew, 13 wpm for general, 20 wpm for extra, would you renew your license?

I know you're right.

These new modernized hams want everything to be easy just like flipping the on-off switch on an appliance. We try and tell them that ham radio is more than just operating an appliance, but they won't listen. Then when murphy's law kicks in they don't know how to deal with it. I feel sorry for them, but it's really not their fault that licensing has been dumbed down over the years. The phonies did notice after we put the broken computers in the dumpster that the bands sounded much better without all the computer generated noise on their receivers. And their contacts per minute increased. They realize now that when equipment fails it's nice to have skills you can fall back on that will let you keep communicating. Especially important during emergencies. Hams wouldn't look good if during an emergency we couldn't communicate.

And how many times has that happened to you? I'll bet never. You're too smart to smoke your finals. Normally when I hear someone lost their finals it was a result of operator error, or an act of stupidity.

Yes, for you it would get very boring, having to send 8 dits after every spelling mistake.
